Shapp urges $100 million bond issue

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Gov. Milton J. Shapp asked the legislature Monday night to mount "the most massive local response to a natural disaster" by approving a $100 million bond issue for flood reconstruction.

Shapp, in a televised speech to a joint session of the General Assembly, refused to take a firm stand on a proposal to give the legislators each $9,600 more each year. He said their decision should be tempered by adverse public reaction.

The $100 million raised by a bond issue can be matched against some $350 million from the federal government "for flood damage renewal and redevelopment," Shapp said.

He estimated this would put the state's financial commitment for flood relief over the $300 million mark. The federal government promised to contribute $2.5 billion.

Shapp noted the legislature already has provided $150 million for flood relief. He also asked for a constitutional amendment allowing the state to give direct grants and loans to individuals, businesses and farmers.

"This is, without question," Shapp said, "the most massive local response to a natural disaster ever mounted in any state of the union."

The governor indicated he may ask for more bond issues in the future if the federal government does not pay the full cost of the roads that were damaged by Hurricane Agnes.

He said $50 million of the flood money already appropriated by the legislature will be used for short-term loans to businessmen and farmers who are waiting to receive money from the federal government. It will be loaned for 90 to 180 days at 2 per cent interest.

Some $24 million of the original $150 million appropriation has not been earmarked for any particular program, he said.

"While many thousands of our fellow citizens, victimized by the flood, need your help," Shapp said, "many millions of Pennsylvanians have expressed their concern about the recent report of the compensation commission."

The commission proposed to boost the legislator's salary-expense package from $15,600 to $25,200—a 62 per cent increase. It goes into law Aug. 21 if the legislature does not reject it.

"Whether or not the proposed increases for the three branches of government are justifiable," he said, "the fact is that they have not been justified in the eyes of the people. They are saying they object to the amount of the proposed increases and also to the manner in which those increases were put into effect."

"Prior to Aug. 21, you can demonstrate your own responsiveness to your constituents by weighing the entire report in light of those demands."

Shapp also asked the legislature to approve a series of bills that would bring Pennsylvania's election laws in line with the Federal Voting Rights Act of 1970. Most of them involve absentee voting.

"Unless they are changed prior to Sept. 1," Shapp said, "it will be necessary to have separate voting machines in each voting place to be used by those who are eligible to vote only for president and vice president and by those who qualify to vote for both federal and state candidates."

The governor asked for a special appropriation of $175,000 to fund a massive voter registration drive in Luzerne County, where all the registration records were destroyed in the flood. He added:

"We must have special legislation passed immediately, not only permitting Luzerne County citizens to register by mail, but allowing them to register when they come to the polls on election day."

Shapp also asked the legislature to pass two more constitutional amendments — one that would reduce the size of the legislature and the other allowing for a graduated income tax.

Shapp noted that the deadline for publishing these amendments already passed.

But he said the attorney general interpreted this three-month rule to mean that the amendments can be published anytime before the end of August.

"Therefore," he said, "I am requesting that the General Assembly at this time revert to regular session, pass the amendments to reduce the size of the legislature and provide for a graduated income tax so that we can have these amendments published during August, September and October."

Shapp addressed the legislature on the first night of a special session designed to deal only with flood relief, voting reform and salaries.

Demos, GOP, blast Gov. Shapp

HARRISBURG (UPI) — House Democrats sided with Republicans Monday night, blasting Gov. Milton J. Shapp's address to the General Assembly on flood relief and salary hikes.

"I don't think much of the speech," said Rep. Harry J. Comer, D-Philadelphia, "but then I don't think much of him in general."

Comer, normally a strong Shapp supporter, objected to the governor's statement that legislative salary increases "have not been justified in the eyes of the voters."

"All of his speeches and all of his statements have said it is a problem for the legislature," Comer said, "so why is he injecting himself?"

Another Philadelphia Democrat, Eugene Gelfand, called the speech "singularly unimpressive."

One disgruntled House Democrat, Russell J. LaMarca of Berks County, refused to stand up or clap until a television camera turned on him. He muttered under his breath and stood up until the camera turned away.

"The governor's programs are quite ambitious," Rep. Harry Englehart, D-Cambria, Democratic Caucus Chairman said.

"But they are not the kind of thing this legislature is going to enact in three days," Englehart said.

"He is asking the Commonwealth to bring on a big new indebtedness . . . and none of us have had time to study if this is what should be done."

House Republican leader Kenneth B. Lee, R-Sullivan, called the governor's legislative plan a "crash program which obviously was drawn up at the last minute."

Lee said he had received copies of the bills only six hours before the speech was given.

"As I have said before, the governor doesn't know what he wants to do for flood victims," Lee said. "The victims don't know what he is doing, and we don't either."

Lee said the GOP would not block passage of the flood relief bills, but he said it would demand information from Shapp on exactly how the money was being spent.

Senators displayed a more tempered reaction.

"Our members shouldn't be angry at the governor," Senate President Pro Tempore Martin L. Murray, D-Luzerne, said. "He was only reporting what the people said."

"I don't know why the House is so hostile," Sen. Jeanette Reibman, D-Northampton, said. "This is a terrible crisis, and we've got to act together."

Carlucci hears complaints

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (UPI) — A group of about only 50 victims of Tropical Storm Agnes were on hand Monday to air their complaints about flood relief with President Nixon's personal representative in this northeastern Pennsylvania area.

Frank Carlucci, the deputy federal budget director, set up shop in a blue van parked on the field of a recreation park in nearby Kingston. A sign on the van told passing motorists that inside was "Frank Carlucci, President's Personal Representative."

Two hours after he was given orders by the President, Carlucci, a native of this area, arrived here to "cut through red tape" to assist residents affected by the June flooding.

"I'm at my wits end," Mrs. Edward Barber, 53, told the White House aide. She said she and her husband had only $20 between them.

"We applied for a Small Business (Administration) loan and haven't got it yet. We asked for a trailer. We haven't got that yet."

"People who want trailers can't get them. Those who really don't want them get them."

Carlucci told Mrs. Barber he would make sure "you get the SBA loan and we'll see about the trailer."

At his side, an aide was taking down complaints in shorthand, along with names.

Treasury Secretary George Shultz, center, and HEW Secretary Elliot Richardson, right, tell House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Rep. Wilbur Mills Monday the administration supports a $200 tax credit for private school tuition but opposes spending $2.2 billion annually for five years in general aid to public schools.

Pay Board retains guideline

No change in wage rule

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pay Board decided against lowering its 5.5 per cent annual guideline for wage increases Monday because it said inflation was slowing down under the present standard.

The board met with the Price Commission during the morning to discuss whether to lower the guideline, then decided during an afternoon session to make no change but to review it again later this year.

There had been speculation the board would tighten its rein on wage increases to slacken the pace of inflation more quickly, as Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, has suggested. A lower guideline of 5 per cent or less had been mentioned.

The board said the average wage and salary increase of nearly 13 million workers approved by the Pay Board since Nov. 14 had been 5 per cent, well below its 5.5 per cent standard.

"These wage trends are clearly helping to slow inflation," the board said.

The cost of living has increased about 2.9 per cent since President Nixon froze wages and prices a year ago Tuesday, and has risen about 3.6 per cent since the freeze ended in mid-November.

The board said the average working man's wages had more than kept up with inflation since economic controls were imposed a year ago.

"The Pay Board has completed a comprehensive review of the general wage and salary standard to determine whether any revision is indicated," the board said in a statement.

Vote requested by Senate

House curbs war powers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, dispatching in a few minutes a war powers issue on which the Senate spent more than two weeks, Monday passed legislation that would require the President to advise Congress promptly and fully when he commits U.S. military forces to combat without prior congressional action.

The Senate, after debate that lasted from March 28 to April 13, voted to put these new curbs on such presidential warmaking powers and in some cases to require termination of conflict within 30 days unless Congress meantime has approved.

The main effect of the House action, on a 344-13 roll call, was to send the war powers question to a House-Senate conference committee, where Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., said an effort will be made to draft compromise language that will be acceptable not only to the House and Senate but also to President Nixon.

Actually, the House twice before had debated the war powers question and passed the identical bill approved Monday. But the Senate had declined to accept the earlier action as the basis for compromise talks.

The war powers issue grows out of the constitutional provisions giving Congress the right to declare war but giving the President command of the troops. It has been argued throughout U.S. history but reached new heat during Senate controversy over conduct of the Vietnam War.

Kissinger holds secret top level peace talks

ZURICH (UPI) — Henry A. Kissinger, national security adviser to President Nixon, flew to Switzerland for a personal visit Monday following a White House announced secret meeting with North Vietnamese officials at the Paris peace talks.

Kissinger's special U.S. Air Force plane landed at Zurich's

Kloten airport at 6:36 p.m. after a flight from Paris.

Kissinger declined any comment on his reported meeting with the Hanoi delegates to the talks.

Kissinger immediately was whisked away by limousine to the village of Laax, 100 miles south of here, to join his parents.

25 unions endorse McGovern

WASHINGTON — McGovern won backing in 25 unions. Republicans mulled desirability of delegate quotas. Five of the unions have already pledged a total of $125,000 to the newly formed "National Labor Committee for the Election of McGovern-Shriver." The group will set up panels in every state to persuade workers to vote for McGovern and his vice presidential running mate, Joseph Keenan, secretary of the international brotherhood of electrical workers and chairman of the new group, said the action isn't a repudiation of AFL-CIO President George Meany.

Republicans urge reforms

MIAMI BEACH — Convention membership quotas were rejected by Republicans of every persuasion as undemocratic, unworkable and unhealthy. But a long string of witnesses also said the Republicans are a minority party that must find some way to broaden its base to include more young people, women and blacks or it will "wither and die" as a major force in U.S. politics. (Special convention coverage, Page 2.)

Clark clarifies POW issue

SAN FRANCISCO — Clark linked release of POWs to "A change of administration in the U.S." The former attorney General under President Johnson qualified, however, a statement previously attributed to him that all U.S. prisoners of war would be released "when we stop this senseless bombing and get on with the business of peace." He said, "I either misspoke or was misquoted." He said a North Vietnamese newspaper editor told him that if "there is a change of administration" in the U.S., all prisoners could be released the day the new president takes office. And he said he had a letter from Hanoi's foreign minister saying the POWs would be freed "with an agreement on the military and political issues." The Pentagon disputed Clark's claim that U.S. prisoners were being treated humanely in North Vietnam. But it declined comment on his statement of written assurances they would be released when U.S. involvement ended.

Drug crackdown ineffective

WASHINGTON — The military's crackdown on drugs hasn't been effective and may have driven some servicemen from Marijuana to Heroin and other hard drugs, the General Accounting Office said. In a six-volume report to Congress, the agency noted that incidence of drug use varies from area to area. And it recommended the Pentagon move to unannounced urinalysis at randomly selected military units rather in place of the current system of announced, programmed tests.

Sen. Schweiker urges more aid

By GLENN RITT
Ottaway News Service
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Calling the federal flood insurance program a "failure," Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., Monday urged Congress to "double" present coverage available to both homeowners and businesses.

Schweiker, questioned at a capitol hill press conference, also said that disaster relief efforts in Pennsylvania "have been marked by red tape, bureaucratic lethargy and lack of direction."

He said he was "pleased" to see the appointment of Frank Carlucci, deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget as flood "czar." Three weeks ago, "said Schweiker, "I talked to OMB and recommended that a czar was needed."

The senator was unwilling to comment on last week's widely-publicized confrontation in Wilkes-Barre between Housing and Urban Development Secretary George Romney and Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp over the pace of relief efforts by the federal government.

Schweiker also refused to discuss reports that a strongly-worded memorandum from President Nixon ordering Romney to Wilkes-Barre to oversee recovery efforts was interpreted by the secretary as an insult and possibly led to his threatened resignation.

All Schweiker would say about the events was that "there developed personality conflicts."

Schweiker told reporters he intends to recommend drastic amendments to the Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1972. "We have to start from scratch," he said.

Pa. legislators' salaries low compared to other states

HARRISBURG (UPI)—A comparison of legislative salaries in the 10 most populous states shows Pennsylvania's lawmakers deserve a salary increase if they reduce the size of the General Assembly.

Legislative salaries in Pennsylvania rank ninth among the 10 states, but the General Assembly has more members than every other state except one.

They earn $7,200 yearly, compared to $19,200 in California, $17,500 in Illinois, $17,000 in Michigan, $15,000 in New York, $12,750 in Ohio, $12,000 in Florida, $11,400 in Massachusetts, $10,000 in New Jersey and $4,800 in Texas.

Massachusetts has the most legislators, 280, followed by Pennsylvania, 253; Illinois, 235; New York, 207; Texas, 181; Michigan, 148; Ohio, 132, and New Jersey and California, 120.

Ohio and Texas are the only legislatures which cannot meet on a year-round basis such as Pennsylvania. They convene only in odd numbered years and for special sessions.

It is no coincidence that those states which have the highest legislative salaries have the fewest number of legislators, according to Mrs. Carolyn Kenton, assistant director of research for the Council on State Governments.

Mrs. Kenton compiled a table of legislative salaries for the council's annual publication dealing with state government trends and statistics.

She said state legislatures generally are becoming smaller and that the reduction in size is followed by an increase in salaries.

The Pennsylvania legislature has the same goal in mind, but it is doing it backwards. The lawmakers want the pay increase first, and plan to reduce the size of the legislature later.

This is demonstrated by the fact that the legislature hastily adjourned July 7 in an acknowledged effort to allow a $12,000 salary increase slide into effect without an on-the-record vote.

But, by coincidence, that quick adjournment effectively killed the legislature's chances of passing a constitutional amendment reducing the size of the legislature from 253 to 201 by next spring.

Because of a constitutional technicality, that amendment cannot go to the voters for ratification until 1975 at the earliest.

The Commonwealth Compensation Commission recommended salaries be hiked by $12,000, to $19,200. At the same time, it proposed expense accounts be cut from $8,400 to $6,000 and be made accountable.

The report, however, is expected to be defeated overwhelmingly and a smaller pay increase substituted.

The plan most discussed would provide a salary of $15,600 and an accountable expense allowance of $6,000. Assuming that every legislator spends the full $6,000, this would represent a total of $21,600 a year.

In other words, it currently costs each person residing within the state 33 cents a year to pay a legislator's $7,200 salary and $8,400 expense account.

The alternative to the Commonwealth Compensation Commission recommendation would cost each person 47 cents, or 14 cents more than they now pay.

Yet the legislature could increase salaries to $19,636 without costing the taxpayers a penny by reducing the size of the Man dies during protest

HARRISBURG (UPI) — A 64-year-old man collapsed and died in the capitol rotunda Monday when he came to protest a salary increase for the state legislature.

The man was identified as Alton Ross, of Harborside, a labor representative for United Community Services in Erie. He died of an apparent heart attack.

Ross was one of 15 people who came by motorcade from the Erie area to protest a proposed 62 per cent salary and expense account for the legislators. The protest was organized by Help Enforce Lower Prices, Inc.

Mary Nold, vice president of the group, said petitions were brought with signatures of 10,000 persons opposing the legislative pay hikes.

legislature by 52 members and adopting the commission's recommendation of a $6,000 accountable expense allowance.

It is a simple matter of redistributing money currently paid out to 201 instead of 253 legislators.

The $15,600 that would have been paid to the 52 members is combined and then divided up among the 201 members. This gives each an additional $4,036.

Then, each of the 201 members can apply to their salaries the extra $2,400 left over when expense allowances are cut from $8,400 to $6,000.

The $4,036 and $2,400 add up to an additional salary of $6,436. Add this increase to the $7,200 base pay and the $6,000 in expenses and the total salary and expenses comes to $19,636.

The cost to the people: 33 cents per person, the same as it is today.

Another alternative to the Commonwealth Compensation Commission report also mentioned frequently is a salary of $15,600 and all justifiable expenses.

No other state has open end expense accounts and only two major states—Texas and Maryland—have accountable expenses up to certain limits.

In Maryland, senators and representatives can be reimbursed up to $5,000 and $3,000 respectively per year. In Texas, it is $1,700 and $875 per month.

Officials in Maryland report there have been few abuses. Texas, however, is a different story.

At present, two representatives and three former legislators are under indictment on charges of misusing their expense accounts.

Platform proposals presented

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Common Cause chairman John Gardner called on Republicans Monday to advocate public financing of election campaigns, abolition of the Electoral College and the Congressional seniority system and an end to secrecy in government.

He said the Republican party had been "more forward-looking" in congressional reform than the Democrats.

Gardner, who appeared before the Republican platform subcommittee on Responsive Government, was one of dozens of witnesses to testify either before the full committee or its seven subcommittees. The platform draft has been written by GOP leaders and approved by the White House.

Almost all the witnesses were Nixon supporters, and there was almost no dissension or controversy.

The only major exception was Rep. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio, billed as the spokesman for the party's conservative wing. He accused Nixon of extending the "policies of New Deal welfareism at home and appeasement abroad" rather than following the 1968 GOP platform.

Ashbrook was particularly critical of the arms limitation agreement with the Soviet Union, Nixon's contacts with China and Russia and Nixon's proposal for a guaranteed annual income.

Two Cabinet members testified—Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz—and both used the occasion more to attack Democrats and praise GOP accomplishments than to advocate platform planks.

Clark: POW freedom assured

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Former Attorney General Ramsey Clark said Monday that North Vietnam's foreign ministry "guaranteed" him that all American prisoners of war will be released as part of any settlement of the Indochina War.

The editor of Hanoi's leading newspaper told him that some prisoners would be released on inaugural day and all of them within 90 days if Sen. George McGovern is elected president, Clark said.

Javits, governors in center of GOP reform movement

By TIM METZ
Ottaway News Service
MIAMI BEACH — Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York and Govs. Francis Sargent of Mass. and Thomas Meskill of Conn., have put themselves squarely at the center of the movement to reform the Republican Party.

Speaking to the first session of the party's rules committee, Sen. Javits and Gov. Sargent (who said he spoke in behalf of Gov. Meskill and a dozen of the other Republican governors) separately outlined plans for sweeping reform in all aspects of party affairs.

While both men backed recommendations on delegate selection, previously hammered out by the Republican Party's special Committee on Delegate and Organization (commonly the "DO" committee), both went beyond those recommendations in their testimony.

Javits called for creation of a standing council that would serve to fight discrimination in party affairs; for a 48-hour cooling off period between the time the national convention gets the name of a vice presidential nominee and acts on that name; and for expanded representation at the national convention for larger states and for diverse minorities and other voting groups within those states.

Sargent's proposals were more sweeping. He issued seven specific proposals aimed at a restructuring of the GOP's National Committee of Republican State Committees and of the state delegations to the national convention and their representatives on its permanent committee. Javits told a press conference after his testimony that he had not been aware of Gov. Sargent's proposals in advance of the hearing, even though some aspects of both were similar.

When a reporter asked Sargent why the name of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York was not among those supporting his party reform package he replied, "Gov. Rockefeller is a close friend and a staunch progressive, so he was on top of my call-list, but I was unable to reach him."

When Sargent was asked specifically if Rockefeller had declined the invitation to support his proposal because of his extremely close relationship to the Nixon campaign this year, the Mass. governor chuckled then said, "I just wasn't able to reach him."

(Rockefeller is heading the effort to re-elect the President in New York and is also scheduled to make the nominating speech for Nixon framework being proposed by Sen. Charles Percy of Ill., which would have the effect of increasing the number of delegates to the 1976 convention to 2,100 from the present total of 1,348. The extra seats would be distributed on the basis of population giving the more populous states a larger voice in party affairs.

In addition, Javits urged creation of a "broadly representative National Council with the power to assist states in bringing about fair representation within our party processes of all Republicans who seek to participate in the national convention."

With a mission to help implement the party's anti-discrimination rule, the council "might serve as a sounding board for complaints from persons who feel they have been wronged in the delegate selection process" Javits told the news conference after his testimony.

"And the council would serve as a means of presenting cases of alleged discrimination before the party's credentials committee," Javits said.

"The Republican Party must speak to this issue so that we cannot be misunderstood. It must invite diversity and facilitate choice. It must have new ideas and new people," he concluded.

Javits is expected to speak of even more broader suggested reforms.

MIAMI BEACH — While few pressmen or politicians assembled for the Republican Party pre-convention round of committee meetings here this week, don't expect them to produce any serious party splits but a couple promise to be lively.

Those are the deliberations of the committee on resolution (equivalent to the Democratic Platform Committee and commonly called that even by Republicans) and of the committee on rules. It is in these two areas that liberal Republicans have chosen to wage their battle for party reform and party backing of such controversial issues as liberal abortions and busing to achieve integration.

The Pennsylvania delegation to the GOP convention here next week is represented on the platform committee by Sen. Richard S. Schweiker and Mrs. Peter Honaman of Harrisburg.

Casualties increasing

SAIGON (UPI) — Casualties are running into the thousands in the stalemated battle in northern South Vietnam, but the South Vietnamese are killing eight Communists for every man they lose, military spokesmen said Monday.

Casualties started mounting when South Vietnamese troops began a counterattack June 28 to recapture Quang Tri Province, the only province ever taken by the Communists. Quang Tri was captured May 1, one month after the start of the current North Vietnamese offensive.

Natural foods provide 'gourmet' trip around world

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a three-part series on organic foods — what they are, how they are grown, and where they can be bought.

BY MAUREEN RUFÉ
Pocono Record Reporter

ALLENTOWN — If you want to take a gourmet trip around the world in just a few minutes, take time out to visit an organic or natural food store.

The chances are you'll be pleasantly surprised when you discover that the shelves contain a host of foreign delicacies, as opposed to aisles and aisles of wheat germ, vitamins, or that funny sounding cereal called granola.

For example, one visit to Nature's Products retail store in Allentown will most assuredly bring you back a second time, if not for some 100 per cent peanut or pecan butter, perhaps for some strawberry soup or high protein blueberry doughnuts.

Or, maybe your fancy is Greek raisins, Turkish apricots, or Swedish biscuits. It might just be that your natural puffed rice wafers caused such a stir at a recent cocktail party, you had to come back for more.

Whatever the reason, more of the general public are frequenting natural food stores today to add a gourmet touch to their meals and a healthy spark to their diets.

The conversion of drab health food labels into modern, colorful packaging is testimony that in terms of consumers the "Health food nut" is being replaced by the average housewife, who wants some new and exciting ideas for her table that have the extra fringe benefit of being nutritious as well.

"The entire industry is expanding by about $200,000,000 annually; it is really booming right now," said David Weiss, vice president of Nature's Products, Inc., one of 12 leading organic food companies in the nation and the leading importer of natural products.

Supplement diet

"At one time the industry was filled with so-called health food nuts, but that is not true anymore," continued the young executive, who is responsible for marketing Nature's Products in more than 38 states. "People today are interested in supplementing their diet. They just like the taste or they buy certain gourmet items."

It sure looks like the real stuff, only it's non-alcoholic! Greeting a bottle of imported French table wine, David Weiss, vice president of Nature's Products, explains to a customer that it is the same organic brand that is included on the Metropolitan Opera's wine list.

Weiss explained that one Israeli housewife, who now lives in Allentown, purchases a special imported Jewish sesame product to prepare authentic native dishes, while a Texas woman uses the company's beet root product from Germany, because it was prescribed by her doctor.

"Most people probably want to try organic foods because they don't contain the poisons that other things do," said the prolific young artist, himself a recent convert to natural foods. "Then they usually stick with the product because of the taste."

"As one customer told me recently," he continued, "this food tastes the same as the things my grandmother used to make when I was young. Today you just can't buy 100 per cent pure peanut butter or maple syrup except in an organic food store."

Weiss, whose company distributes more than 3,000 different products to more than 600 food stores throughout the country, said the best advice for the natural food novice was to read the labels:

"The local A&P is my library when I have to design a new label," said Weiss, who also does the layout for the company ads that go into "Playboy," "Cosmopolitan," and the national trade magazines.

Labels important

"If people read the ingredients, they will get a real education about organic products. Because the industry is growing so rapidly, the consumer has to be careful — there are a lot of unreliable, so-called organic companies springing up. The best thing to do is read the labels."

Further complicating the problem of the outgrowth of unethical organic companies, is the fact that the Federal Drug Administration (FDA) has not come up with a clear cut definition of what organic and natural food is, according to the vice president.

"The problem is that the FDA doesn't pin down these terms and a lot of people are claiming they market health foods, when they aren't," explained the executive. "We're getting to the point where 'organic' is actually a no-no word in the industry. 'Natural' is the in-word today."

Commenting that Nature's Products is engaged in the importing, manufacture, distribution, and wholesale and retail sale of health food items, Weiss said the company could provide a workable definition for the health food terms used today.

"Health Foods," embrace vitamins, produce and non-processed foods (to the extent that no essential elements have been removed from the food or devitalized by thermo or chemical processes)," said the marketing expert. "Organic Foods" are grown on soil which has been fertilized by natural compost only, rather than synthetic fertilizers.

"Natural foods, he continued are foods to which no chemical additives or preservatives are added in the course of preparing the foods for commercial distribution."

Expensive items

Conceding that some natural foods are more expensive, Weiss said prices were higher because products were not mass produced, and he added that there were greater distribution problems in his industry.

Emphasizing, however, that some products, such as fruit juices actually cost less than their non-natural counterparts, Weiss said they could be marketed cheaper because the cost of chemicals and sprays is eliminated.

"You have to realize that you are buying an entirely different product, too," said the vice-president. "For example, an eight-ounce bottle of our maple syrup retails for $1.49, while a 12 ounce bottle of theirs (referring to his non-organic competitors), only costs 39 cents."

"The thing to remember, however, is that ours is 100 per cent maple syrup," he continued. "Theirs is 70 per cent sugar syrup or sugar water, 25 per cent corn syrup, 2 per cent color and only 3 per cent actual maple syrup. In fact, theirs contains so little maple syrup, that the government won't let them use the name maple on their label anymore."

Commenting on the type of organic products at the retail store at 20th and Hamilton Streets, Weiss said most newcomers are surprised at the shops variety of stocked organic merchandise, which includes strawberry skin cream, organic enough to eat if you have a mind to.

There are organic toothpastes, soaps and cosmetics of all types, snacks, fruits, seeds, nuts, more than 50 varieties of honey spreads, natural cheeses and even organic chickens.

Pointing to a colorful, expensive looking French wine shelf, Weiss pulled a deep purple colored bottle from the rack and explained:

"This is non-alcoholic wine — pure French imported grape juice. This is actually on the wine list at the Metropolitan Opera House."

Importing a wide variety of health food products primarily from England, Germany, Sweden and Belgium, Nature's Products also distributes merchandise from such countries as Poland, Greece, New Zealand, Israel, Holland, Turkey, Spain, Mexico, Switzerland, Norway and many more.

One trip through the aisles at the Allentown store is, indeed, like a gourmet trip around the world.

Landfill logical for solid waste

Most of us probably believe that some day a foolproof way will be found to recycle all solid waste in a way that is practical for a community of any size.

This must come, or at least a method of disposal must come that reduces waste to a tiny fraction of its original mass. Otherwise the earth must eventually be covered with a layer of garbage.

Meanwhile, back at the old dump, only a handful of enthusiasts claim to have the solution now. And few are ready to trust that handful.

We do not envy those charged with discovering a way to dispose of Monroe County's garbage but we do not agree with one of their earliest decisions — to forget about acquiring another site for a landfill.

Any sort of acceptable plant to recycle and-or incinerate solid waste is likely to be a gamble with lots of tax money. And its hard to swallow that a community close to several abandoned slate quarries, that has several stone and gravel quarries and is not far from decaying coal shafts can't come up with a disposal spot for its trash.

Certainly for a small percentage increase in their charges, collectors could afford to travel extra distances.

The hope would be as a landfill-type site is utilized by Monroe County that more populous communities far more desperate for such sites than we, would experiment with recycling and clean incineration which we might then expect would some day be practical for us.

Improvement via I-80

Human nature being what it is an observer of a local conversation might believe that Interstate 80 has created more problems than it has solved for Monroe County.

Traffic has multiplied, trucks have super-multiplied and all classes of vehicles go faster and make more noise.

But let's go back a decade and remember when 611 used to carry most of the traffic over Foxtown Hill and through Stroudsburg.

How would it be if even half the traffic now on 80 was trying to get past us via old pre-80 routes? Yes, it's possible three lanes will soon be necessary to let I-80 do its job but what we have is so much an improvement we can take a moment, at least, to be grateful.

Curb those trucks

Speaking of I-80 traffic those empty, noisy trucks continue to speed through Stroudsburg heading west.

Apparently the drivers can't resist the down grade that begins at the East Stroudsburg exit and rumbles them under the Broad Street bridge at a speed that frequently surpasses 65.

The only way we can think to curb it is for state police to set up occasional radar posts and give the area a reputation for tough enforcement. Police have explained the difficulties of such a plan including lack of an area in which to pull the offenders to a stop and lack of cover for equipment. Rebuttal from the thousands inconvenienced by the truck thunder: A way must be found.

Trying to muscle in again

Drummond Roundup

By TOM BRADEN

(Braden is substituting for the vacationing Roscoe Drummond)

WASHINGTON — "Calamity," according to the dictionary, "suggests lasting emotion, affliction and grief." "Disaster" is different.

"Disaster," the dictionary says, "carries the attendant notion of lack of foresight." Moreover, it is "measurable."

So it was calamity and not disaster which struck George McGovern's campaign and after all the sympathy has been extended to Sen. Thomas Eagleton, who was the first victim, we ought to spare a little kindness for George McGovern, a kindly man who looks right now as though he will be victim No. 2.

Somehow his announcement last week that he had chosen Sargent Shriver as his new running mate did not come across as quite the rescue operation his anxious and crestfallen staff had hoped for. But Shriver's forte is enthusiasm and perhaps that will make up for the fact that by the time McGovern got to Shriver, the choice seemed not so much a bell-ringer as the best McGovern could do.

Rest denied

Poor George McGovern. Here he was, getting his first rest in two years, looking back upon a lonely climb to the top of the mountain after a campaign unmatched in history for dogged determination against odds. He deserved a retrospective moment, a chance to glance back over the long past, perhaps to smile reflectively at impassable points which were passed.

"Weak-kneed," people are saying now, "spineless," "not tough enough." The god of toughness occupies the high seat in the American pantheon. Mercy, on the other hand, has become rather old-fashioned and is no longer prayed to. Except by the desperate.

And Thomas and Barbara Eagleton were desperate when they arrived that day at McGovern's camp in the Black Hills. They practically threw themselves at McGovern's feet. They begged Eleanor and George McGovern to give them a chance. And George McGovern had to make a decision. Having made it, he had to make another. He had to

Dike issue

I know it sounds outrageous, but I simply do not care whether or not the North Vietnamese dike system is being bombed.

It is certainly true that the destruction of the dikes would lead to widespread havoc during the rainy season. And no doubt Hanoi, with good reason, is worried about the vulnerability of these dikes. But so what? Hanoi can guarantee the dikes against attack by means of one simple expedient. It can stop killing South Vietnamese. Evidently the dikes are not so valuable that Hanoi is willing to go that far.

The dikes are valuable enough for some effort to be made at protecting them, and so Hanoi has orchestrated a global propaganda campaign for that purpose. The North Vietnamese spokesmen in Paris complain about "deliberate" dike bombing. Assorted Swedes and Frenchmen on the scene provide some testimony, the credibility of which is best determined by the toss of a coin. Eugene Carson Blake of the World Council of Churches, Kurt Waldheim of the United Nations and other consciences of mankind do their part. Jane Fonda examines a few craters. And now Ramsey Clark, fresh from the defense of the Harrisburg heroes, is in Hanoi with a group of European leftists to do his bit on the dike business.

All of this testimony is almost bound to be inconclusive.

Eisenhower's threat

It is true enough, as President Nixon argues, that the Air Force could demolish the dikes in a week if it were our policy to do so. On the other hand, to say that is not to exclude the possibility that it is U.S. policy to bomb some of the dikes: to nibble away at them, so to speak, just to let Hanoi know that the dikes are a possibility we have not forgotten about. This would be a tactic analogous to President Eisenhower's secret but blunt threat to use nuclear weapons in Korea, after which peace talks were promptly forthcoming. Nevertheless, it is entirely likely that the say he stood squarely behind Eagleton because if he hadn't said that he wouldn't be giving him a chance.

He was kind and he was merciful and he was tough, too, in the sense that deciding to carry an additional burden up another mountain is always tough. But it wasn't tough in the self-serving sense Americans admire. McGovern put the virtues we worship in saints ahead of the virtues we worship in professional football. Within the week, it was clear that in the opinion of his countrymen he was wrong.

Common error

Obviously, Thomas Eagleton made the common error of supposing that a man who shows mercy is a man who can be stepped on. McGovern began to get disturbing signals. A promised medical report was not forthcoming. Eagleton was saying he wouldn't get off the ticket no matter what. McGovern tried to signal back.

Here is a weakness in George McGovern. He does not like to confront people directly. He avoids calling a man on the telephone and saying in effect, "I don't like what you're doing. You're fired."

He had to get his friend, Sen. Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin, into the act. Ask Gaylord to break the news. Eagleton insisted on making his case. "I know why you're here," he told Nelson, "and if George McGovern wants me off the ticket, I'll get off the ticket. But I want to argue with McGovern."

The rest was painful. George McGovern behaved with poise and equanimity as all of us would hope to behave in moments of terrible poignance. As it turned out, it would have been easier to bend the knee to the principal god: be tough. "After all," McGovern might have said to himself, "who got me into this mess? Who didn't tell me the truth? (The story that Eagleton was not questioned closely about his past is simply not factual.) Why should I feel sorry for Eagleton? Where was Eagleton in New Hampshire and Wisconsin and Nebraska? He should feel sorry for me.

McGovern doesn't think that way. The lesson of politics is that if he wants to be President, he will have to learn.

damage so far has been accidental. You cannot drop as many bombs as we are without hitting a few dikes. Furthermore, the North Vietnamese themselves have fired a prodigious number of SAM anti-aircraft missiles into the air, most of which miss. In falling to earth, these could easily damage some dikes.

No doubt expert craterologist like Ramsey Clark and Jane Fonda will instruct us in due course on which craters were the result of deliberate bombing, which the result of accident, and which caused by errant SAMs.

The whole controversy, moreover, contains some fine incidental ironies. For months it was said that air power was much overrated, indeed that it was practically ineffective as a weapon in Vietnam. Now that air power has flattened the North Vietnamese offensive and turned its gaze on North Vietnam itself, we are beginning to hear that it is actually too effective. It might knock the North Vietnamese out of the war altogether, or even out of history.

Opinion fouled

The deliberate mobilization of "world opinion" on the dike issue, analytically considered, is an attempt by Hanoi to erect a protective barrier above those vulnerable dikes. And such opinion is highly focused politically. We have not heard from the likes of Blake or Fonda or Clark about the civilians deliberately slaughtered by the North Vietnamese along Highway One, for example. World opinion has not expressed outrage over the destruction of places like Quang Tri. No, the humanitarian sentiments of these people crystallize around the dike issue.

It is a peculiar humanitarianism. To the extent that world opinion succeeds in protecting the dikes, the North Vietnamese are the less inhibited about waging their campaign in the South — and killing South Vietnamese. And that is the result to which the Blakes and Fondas and Clarks are so energetically contributing.

Letters TO THE EDITOR

Good movie happily seen

Editor, The Record:

I would like to commend the local theaters for featuring some good, family movies of late.

We are not a family of movie fanciers, however when a decent film comes to town — regardless of the price of admission — we are present.

My husband and I, our nine-year-old son and his buddy went to see "Snoopy Come Home." We, along with many other adults in the theater, enjoyed the movie immensely. The short shown previous to the main feature was very interesting and educational.

I'm broad minded enough to realize in our hustle-bustle business-type life that what the public demands the movie owners must give; but please, Mr. Movie Owner, remember there are as many of us who still enjoy a good western or historical show as there are the minority (I'm sure) who enjoy the X-rated type film.

It saddens me to read of people who must use drugs or drink to find happiness. I might be called an oddball by readers of this letter but try the following:

See if a tear of joy might fall from your eye or a smile cross your face when you hear the laughter of a child . . . or on a Sunday morning if you don't attend church, walk by and listen to the sound of many voices singing praises to God on high.

Sinister conspiracy

Editor, The Record:

Almost completely unknown by the American people, today, is a movement within Congress to set up a Constitutional Convention among representatives of the U.S. and a mixed bag of Socialist countries to create a world wide super state.

This idea is known as the Atlantic Union Resolution. As of 1971 there were 112 members in the House of Representatives that supported this resolution. Today this proposal also has the support of presidential candidate Senator George McGovern.

More surprising still it also has the backing of President Richard Nixon. President Nixon was acclaimed as leader in the movement for the U.S. entry into the Atlantic Union and was presented the "Atlantic Union" award for 1970 by Clarence Streit, president of the International Movement for Atlantic Union.

A good deal can be found out about this idea in the July 13, 14, and 15, 1971 hearings before the Subcommittee on International Organizations and Movements of the Committee on Foreign Affairs in the House of Representatives.

Testifying before this subcommittee on July, 1971, Congressman John R. Rarick of Louisiana had this to say about the Atlantic Union Resolution.

Atlantic Union as intended would be but a step toward world government — the ultimate in the destruction of "People Power" and the death knell to the U.S. Constitution and the birthright of our people . . .

Mr. Chairman, I question the Constitutionality of the Atlantic Union Resolution or any proposal whose aim would be to discuss or plan the giving away of the sovereignty of the United States.

One of the best sources for a brief history of this one world government movement is a paperback written by Gary Allen entitled "None Dare Call it Conspiracy". It also contains an introduction by Congressman John G. Schmitz of California, American Party Candidate for President.

Merry-go-round

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The blockade of Haiphong harbor, according to the latest intelligence reports, has failed to stop the steady flow of supplies into North Vietnam.

Aerial photos show that heavy shipments are rolling across China without any appreciable backup at the border. This means the supplies are pouring into North Vietnam through the existing network of roads, trails and rail lines.

Oil from China is also being pumped through a new, jungle-hidden pipeline into the Hanoi area. Enough oil is coming through, apparently, to enable Hanoi to get along without fuel rationing.

Captured documents also indicate that the North Vietnamese troops at the front have an ample stockpile of arms, ammunition, food and fuel. These supplies had already been moved in position, reportedly, before Haiphong harbor was mined.

Financial "secrets"

Banks are supposed to protect the financial secrets of their customers. If the FBI wants to snoop into the accounts of a suspect, however, the bankers usually fall all over themselves in their eagerness to cooperate.

For the record, the bankers say they don't release financial information to government gumshoes without a subpoena. Dozens of FBI files in our possession, however, tell a different story.

An FBI memo about baby doctor Benjamin Spock, for example, states that, on December 12, 1967, he received a $500 check from the "Fifth Avenue Vietnam Peace Parade Committee."

A subsequent notation warns that "the above check information cannot be made public except in the usual proceedings following the issuance of a subpoena duces tecum.

"The person to be subpoenaed in this matter is Miss Sara T. Malloy, senior vice president, Amalgamated Bank of New York, 11-15 Union Square, New York."

Miss Malloy refused to discuss the matter with us, but the bank's executive vice president, Nicholas Agneta, insisted it was Amalgamated's "policy to get a subpoena before releasing such information."

Check on Jane

Movie actress Jane Fonda's checking accounts are an open book to the G-Men. A "Top Secret" FBI memo dated April 30, 1971, for example, lists five checks written by Miss Fonda to various groups, including the National Council of Churches.

Another memo dated this past January listed 10 checks written on Miss Fonda's accounts. The federal sleuths also visited the City National Bank, Los Angeles, Calif., and copied down the details of 18 checks written by Ellen Lustbader, who is identified as "Fonda's personal secretary."

According to the FBI, Miss Fonda keeps her personal checking accounts at the Morgan Guaranty Trust Company, New York. The information they collected, the memo warns, "is not to be made public" without a subpoena directed to "Arthur W. Herbert, Assistant Secretary."

Herbert told us he didn't release the information and suggested it may have been given to the FBI "by our counsel."

NOTE: Several senators have expressed concern that federal law doesn't adequately protect the privacy of bank records. Senator William Proxmire, D-Wis., in fact, is currently holding hearings in an effort to close loopholes in the law.

Varicose veins

I have been told I have varicose veins in my esophagus. When I tell that to my family, they look at me as if I am out of my mind. But the doctor tells me that this is why I sometimes spit up some blood.

Mr. M.C., N.J.

Dear MR. C.:

Most people associate varicose veins with the legs. Their confusion, therefore, is understandable when you refer to varicosities lining the esophagus. For various reasons, the veins just below the delicate lining of the esophagus become dilated. Back pressure enlarges these veins and occasionally one breaks and emits a small flow of blood.

Various veins or varicosities can be present in many other areas of the body. Your doctor's diagnosis is astute. The basic cause for these varicosities is then sought and, when possible, eliminated.

Can tests be made to find out if I have Addison's disease? I once read that this can cause weakness and that is a problem that bothers me a great deal.

Mrs. Y.N., Tenn.

Dear Mrs. N.:

Yes, weakness can be associated with Addison's disease. It can also be identified with a hundred other conditions, any one of which might terrify if you decided you have it. The fact that you read about Addison's disease does not necessarily mean you have it.

Addison's disease is a very complex disorder affecting the adrenal gland which lies near the kidney in the abdomen. Few conditions of the body are as complex as this type of adrenal inadequacy.

There are many detailed and intricate tests to substantiate the diagnosis when it is suspected by a physician. That suspicion must be the doctor's and not yours if you are to be spared unnecessary anxiety of your speculative "diagnosis."

Blood studies for sodium, sugar and potassium are important. Special water retention tests may suggest Addison's disease. The study of the so-called 17 steroids reveal valuable information about the functioning of the adrenal gland. The concept of "a little knowledge..." is particularly significant for those who "read themselves into" disease they do not have.

Tourists help profession grow

Prostitution flourishes in Taiwan

EDITOR'S NOTE: Helmut Kimpel of Ottaway News Service reports on a two-week study tour of Taiwan, the Republic of China in the second of a four part series.
By HELMUT KIMPEL
Ottaway News Service

TAIPEI — Taiwan (the Republic of China) is not only a stopover or terminal for the visitor to tour its beautiful countryside and climb its 200-mile-long mountain ranges with peaks up to 13,000 feet; many of the 500,000 foreigners and overseas Chinese apparently have helped the island in the growth of the world's oldest profession—prostitution.

While business and government officials are overjoyed by the island's growing tourist trade, they are less than enthusiastic about the also-growing collection of girlie establishments.

Returning to the capital after a week of traveling in the countryside, I arrived in the midst of a heated debate on Taiwan's three television networks, in Taipei's three Chinese and two English language dailies, and in the Yuan, the national legislature, over whether the city's sex joints should be closed.

These establishments, I learned, once were few and inconspicuous in Taipei. Now they are all over the place and highly visible.

As one tourist put it, "Times Square in New York has the sleazy, teasy appearance of sex, but Taipei has the real thing."

Pretense aside, a substantial element of the community obviously has no strong objections to the sex proliferation, a city official told a TV audience.

"If it did, we would have had a crackdown long ago," he said.

Editorially, the TV stations and the newspapers concurred that some tightening was in order for Taipei, although the problem exists in all of the country's major cities.

The controversy began in the Control Yuan — the 70-member body that serves as a watchdog over laws enacted by the 436-member legislative Yuan. The Control Yuan has the power to impeach, censure and audit any public action.

Two of its members have sharply criticized the Executive Yuan, the equivalent of our federal administration, "for not cracking down on the spread of sex joints."

They asked the government to stop issuing new licenses to operators of the sex establishments. In a report, they complained that of the 220 restaurants in the Chungshan North Road area in Taipei, more than half employ "hostesses," who can be bought for an hour or for a night for $5 to $20.

Most of the girls are between 17 and 22 years old and pretty. Some are working in department stores or "working their way through college," as my government-supplied escort explained it.

Some observers here see a bit of double standard in all the furor over Taipei's sex joints. The Chinese armed forces maintain their own health-controlled brothels according to Lt. Col. Chu Liang, spokesman for the Ministry of National Defense.

Prostitutes in the city's Peitou district are also under health control — and thus tacitly sanctioned. A health official told me that both syphilis and gonorrhea are less rampant on the island than elsewhere in Asia and in the United States. While window shopping, I counted at least eight so-called "V.D. Clinics" in one of Taipei's business streets.

While Taiwan officials expressed moral indignation over the issue, the local press registered its opposition to tougher legislation and asked that existing laws should be better enforced.

"Have more vice raids, more lights in dark places, issue tougher sentences for offenders, and curb involvement of teenagers," cried the news media, claiming that half of Taipei's massage parlors, cafes, clubs, and bath houses and hotels would have to be closed if proposed legislation were to be enacted.

The average Chinese citizen and foreign visitor does not have to fear the long arm of the law while frequenting gay places or entertaining a "girl friend" in his hotel room (except for the Grand Hotel which houses guests of the government).

However, there is one group of citizens which may not visit any of the gay places, be it a bar or a night club, a dancing hall or a sex joint — and that group comprises all government officials.

Regardless of rank, be he a lowly policeman from a village in the hinterland or a cabinet minister, the nation's more than 200,000 officials on all levels, legislative, executive or judicial, will be penalized or even fired if they are found in a gay establishment.

Source of the "discriminatory" measure is a

June 24 enacted 10-point code of ethics authored by Premier Chiang Ching-kuo, son of the 86-year-old President Chiang Kai-shek.

While I was in Taipei, a police officer and a tax collector lost their jobs after visiting girlie establishments.

Most of the officials I asked about the code merely shrugged their shoulders and smiled.

One, however, made a more succinct comment: "With the pay we get, what does it matter?"

Between rush hours, one of Taipei's main thoroughfares belies the island's morning and evening traffic. The city has the highest death rate in the world — 18 fatalities for every 1,000 accidents.

Ann Landers

Cat lover

Dear Ann Landers: All my life I have loved cats, so naturally I found the letter from the reader who wrote about her adorable Angora whom she called Lady Chatterly, very interesting.

I doubt that her fiancé, the medical student, was actually allergic to cats. He probably just disliked them. Cats have a way of sensing such things and I would bet my bottom dollar that Lady Chatterly did. The young woman was wise to break the engagement.

I have always known that people who don't like cats are not to be trusted. Such a person is invariably mean, vicious and underhanded. I have never met a cat hater who wasn't a scoundrel.

A person who loves cats should NOT marry a person who does not share these feelings. Such marriages are destined to fail. A cat hater should marry his own kind — they deserve each other.

We can learn much from these scrupulously clean, unfailingly dignified creatures. The ancient Egyptians were the wisest of all. Anyone who hated a cat was put to death.

Tucson Friend

Dear Tucson: I have learned, after 17 years of writing this column, that cat lovers are the most fiercely dedicated segment of society in all the world. Moreover, they are more vocal about their devotion than dog lovers. Death to all cat haters, however, lays it on a bit heavy, in my opinion.

Dear Ann Landers: A close friend has taken up painting as a hobby. For our wedding anniversary she painted an enormous canvass and went to the expense of having it framed. It does not fit in with our decor and is not what we would have selected for our home.

She expects us to hang it in a place of honor. We value her friendship and wouldn't offend her for the world.

Beached.

Dear B.: Hang the canvass in a "place of honor" for a couple of weeks. Move it to a less conspicuous place for another month. The following month, move it to the attic, storeroom, summer home, or winter cabin — you get the idea.

Dear Jon come back

By Jean Adams

FOOLISH: (Q.) I sent Jon an invitation to my graduation exercises. He did not come and he did not call to tell me why not. I was very sorry.

You see, for a while he and I had something Special. We got together after he had broken up with his girl friend and I had broken up with my boy friend. My best girl friend had also gone on a trip to the West Coast.

We were both lonely and we just sort of wandered around together.

Well, my girl friend came home and wanted to see more of me. She thought I was spending too much time with Jon.

He didn't understand, because he wanted us to be steady. I thought I didn't. So foolishly I broke up with him.

Now I want him back. Badly. But I have not seen him or heard from him since the night I told him I was breaking it off. I am so lonely. Please help me.

Serious Now in New Hampshire

(A.) Call Jon and tell him you made a mistake. Ask for his forgiveness. This is all you can do. It may not be enough, but again it may. For your sake I hope it is.

Alfred-Fehr wedding in candlelight setting

BANGOR — Carol Ann Fehr and William Allen Alfred were married in a candlelight ceremony on Aug. 5 at 6 p.m. in Trinity Lutheran Church, Bangor with Rev. Everad officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald James Fehr of 323 Broadway, Bangor. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Paul Alfred, R.D. 1, Pen Argyl.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Miss Sharon Hendershot of Bangor was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Cathy Lescinski, White Mills; Miss Jennifer Harry, Norristown; Miss Loris Sekella, Temple; Miss Lee Neumeyer, Tafton; and Mrs. Lee Mengel, Bangor.

Danae Lynn Cochrane, niece, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jon Edward Cochrane of Fairless Hills was flower girl and her brother, Scott David Cochrane, was ring bearer.

Thomas Amy of Pen Argyl was best man. Ushers were Richard Anke, Holly; Douglas Huber, Parkland; Michael Krout, John Reinhart, and Lee Mengel, all of Bangor.

Robert Miller was organist and Robert Ealey, soloist. The reception was held at the Blue Valley Farm Show building before the couple left for a wedding trip to Cape Cod and the New England States.

The bride, a graduate of Bangor High School and East Stroudsburg State College, has accepted a position with the Bangor Area School District. Her husband, a graduate of Pen Argyl High School, is employed by Direct Aluminum Corp., Stroudsburg.

Outdoor Antique Show Wed.

MOUNT POCONO — The sixth annual Outdoor Antiques Show and Sale will be held in Mount Pocono on Wednesday, Aug. 16, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Forty exhibitors from six states will bring the tools, treasures and utensils of the past. There will be primitives of iron, wood, copper, tin and brass. The show will also feature glassware, china and ceramics as well as jewelry, furniture, toys and campaign buttons.

The show is sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Pocono Mountain Volunteer Fire Co. and will be held on the fire company grounds, rain or shine.

A snack bar will feature homemade salads and cakes prepared by members of the auxiliary.

Picnic over, Eagle Aux. plans for future

STROUDSBURG — At the August meeting of the Eagles Ladies Auxiliary, the president, Jean Wilson, reported on a successful picnic and thanked all of those who helped.

A roll of dimes for the dime throw for children was donated by Chick and Peep Julian of the Brodheadsville Inn and June Forrie, although not a member of the auxiliary, brought a cake.

A demonstration party is planned for the Sept. 12 meeting at 7:30 with the party and refreshments to follow at 8:30. Friends are invited and order books are available from the officers.

The auxiliary is ordering more knives and carrying cases for sale, and in the fall will have notepaper with the Eagle emblem. Jean Strouse is donating hand embroidered Belgian lace dresser scarves for the project for the Readers Trainable Center at the district meeting in September.

Mary Jones, junior past president, reported on her trip to national convention at Atlanta. The next meeting will be held Aug. 22, with officers meeting at 7:30 p.m.

Football Mothers told girls' role on team

EAST STROUDSBURG — There will be girls on the football field at East Stroudsburg High School games this year, not counting the cheerleaders, band members and twirlers.

Although not yet candidates for the team, a few girls will be helping out on the managing end of the team in an experiment announced by Coach Richard Merring at the meeting of the East Stroudsburg Football Mothers.

Coach Merring also gave the mothers a lot of helpful hints on pre-season conditioning for their sons as well as other plans he has for the Cavaliers this year.

At the meeting held at the home of Wilma Rinker, R.D. 3, East Stroudsburg, he also discussed future fund raising projects.

The Football Mothers presented Coach Merring with a check for the purchase of film for the season and for a tackling machine.

Attending the meeting were Betty Miller, Shirley Merring, Ruth Bird, Betty Snyder, Josephine Seese, Eileen Vail, Donna Vail, Dolores Dickison and Charlene Knowles.

Refreshments were served by Wilma Rinker and Betty Miller.

Free fall fashions

Sturdy wardrobe

By ANNE HINKEL
Asst. Home Economist

STROUDSBURG — Free Fall... free? How can fashion have freedom when Fall Fashions '72 are described as "sure", "sensible", and "classic"?

What you find on the garment racks for Fall is hardly traditional clothing. Fall '72 uses classic elements, but combines new looks.

Fashion calls for your participation. "Do your own thing." No longer does fashion dictate the "right" thing to wear but rather, you dictate what is the "right" thing for you by your personal preference, figure and activities.

Now is a good time to take an inventory of your wardrobe and yourself before you go on that next shopping spree.

Begin a list of how you spend your hours during the week. You may sleep 56 hours, work 40 hours; add shopping, cleaning, personal care, etc. Include your daily routine and also note a special occasion that will need that special outfit.

The next step is to analyze your present wardrobe and how it fits into your activity schedule. Go through your closet and list each item under the activity where it will be worn. Some garments will be worn naturally under several activities. This inventory gives you a good opportunity to sort out garments that no longer fit your needs or your figure. And don't forget to sew on that missing button to make a blouse wearable again. The next time you're ready to wear it, it will be ready to wear.

With your activities and wardrobe listed you now have an overview of what you have and what you need. Did you realize you only have two outfits you wear during those 15 hours a week of household duties?

You're not quite ready to grab the credit card. Determine what clothing you need in each activity. Jot down color, style and material. Try to picture your purchase. Your self inventory determined by preference will act as a guideline. Before you shop, decide on a price range for the garment depending how far your budget will reach and how much the garment will be worth to you.

Now you are ready to find the "right" thing for your Fall wardrobe. "Free", "classic", "sensible", whatever the label may be, let your wardrobe and you dictate what will be fashionable for Fall.

Sarah Castone bride of Marino Saveri II

ROSETO — Miss Sarah Kaye Castone, daughter of Anthony Castone of Northampton and the late Mrs. Rose D. Castone, was married on Aug. 5 at 1 p.m. to Marino Charles Saveri II, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. Saveri of 212 North Ninth St., Bangor.

They were married in Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church, Mount Bethel.

Miss Joyce Ann Giovanni was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Michael Trigiani, Miss Patricia Raffetto, Mrs. Ann Racciatto, Miss Arlene Ann Romano and Mrs. Marguerite Vicario.

Junior attendants were Doreen M. Horn and Catherine Giovanni. Steven Castone was ring-bearer.

Joseph C. Angelini was best man. Ushers were Leo Dombchewsky, Pasquale Vicario and three brothers of the bridegroom, Steven P., Franklin A., and Joseph M. Saveri.

A reception was held at the Penn-Stroud Hilton. After a wedding trip to Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, the newlyweds are at home at 179 Garibaldi Ave., Roseto.

The bride is a graduate of Pius X High School and The Pennsylvania State University with a B.A. degree in education. She is teaching fifth grade at Our Lady of Mount Carmel School, Roseto. Her husband, is a graduate of Pius X High School and Villanova University with a B.S. in business administration. He is employed by Gene D. Price, CPA, Stroudsburg.

Willing Workers honor member at cook-out

PARADISE VALLEY — Willing Workers of Paradise Valley presented one of their members, Arlene Sauerwein, who is moving to Florida, with a hostess gown in gratitude for all the work she has done for the group.

A cookout preceded the meeting at the home of Lynn Kuchinski with Peg Watson, Marge Domb and Jane Niering as co-hostesses.

Other members present were Rae Cholerton, Jane Stiff, Clara DePue, Cathleen Smith, Trudy Goll, Winnie Goll, Edith Parr, Betty Williams, Pam Dunlap, Pat Ziegler, Louise Koerner, Mabel Niering, Hilda Heydt and Annette Willis.

Helen Heydt reported on the success of the recent bazaar with a vote of thanks to those who helped. Plans were made for a potluck picnic in August and the annual rummage sale on Sept. 15 at The Roof.

The party ended with ex-temporaneous reminiscences about the beginning of the Willing Workers at least 35 years ago. It was decided to try to reach some of the early members to gather more information to present an anniversary program at the fall banquet.

Planning for men

SINGAPORE (UPI) — The Singapore government has announced that it will open its first family planning clinic for men manned by male doctors.

The innovation was inspired by evidence that men are often too embarrassed to visit clinics because they are run by female doctors and frequented mostly by women.

The Slim Gourmet

Trouble free fish

Wondering how to do with a windfall of fresh-caught fish dumped on your doorstep by the neighborhood angler?

Resist the urge to turn the extras into garden mulch or give-aways to unappreciative relatives... keep it all for yourself! There's nothing you can serve that's slimmer than seafood. Your freezer, some aluminum foil and an hour of preparation time can turn that bumper crop of seafood into scores of easy dinners later on, every one a calorie-winner!

Hopefully your benefactor will have scaled and gutted his catch at the dock (the sooner, the better; cleaned fish keeps fresher, longer.) However, if your fish comes complete with heads, tails, scales and insides most cookbooks have directions for fish-cleaning. Or, ask your fishing friend to show you how to clean one, reassuring him that your plan to do the rest of the dirty work yourself (unless, of course, he insists!).

If you must do the job without any direction, be reassured that fish-cleaning is simply common sense. Fill your sink with water. Submerge the fish and scrape away all the scales, until the skin is smooth. Snip off the fins. Chop off the head and tails. Slit open the fish and remove anything that looks unfamiliar. Rinse and pat dry. At this point you will have "dressed" fish.

Fish "frozen dinners"
Now, lay out several sheets of aluminum foil on your kitchen counter. Place a fish on each. Sprinkle the insides with salt, pepper, garlic salt. Add some dried parsley flakes, onion flakes and paprika if you wish. Tuck a few slices of fresh lemon inside each fish (or a few bay leaves) for extra flavor. Wrap each fish individually, folding the ends of the wrap carefully. Label each packet with a soft-tip marker and put in your freezer. You now have a freezerful of fuss-free frozen fish dinners!

To cook foiled fish
Simply snatch your fish from the freezer and pop them in the oven without further ado. Place the foil packets in a shallow pan to catch the leakage if any occurs. Have the packet wrapped-side down so you can open the foil and check on "doneness."

The amount of time it takes depends on the size and thickness of the fish and whether the packet is frozen or defrosted when baking when you put it in the oven.

DEFROSTED FISH: Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven 20 minutes for small fish, 40 minutes medium fish and an hour or more for larger fish.

FROZEN FISH: Double the baking time.

For best results, have fish defrosted.

TO COOK OUTDOORS: Wrap fish in a double layer of foil. Lay packets directly on hot coals. Cover packet with additional layer of hot coals. Cook 10 to 20 minutes, depending on size. Then open packets to check for doneness.

TO CHECK DONENESS: Fish is cooked when the meat loses its transparent look and becomes opaque. Fish should flake easily when tested with a fork, however, fish that is falling apart has been overcooked.

No nonsense

NEW YORK (UPI) — The era of no-nonsense has dawned in the Houston Independent School District in Texas. School Supt. George G. Garver, via a directive, has ruled that any student who leaves class to participate in a boycott or otherwise fails to abide by rules and regulations and reasonable requests of school personnel shall be suspended at once — for three days.

He also reminded school workers they don't have to take verbal or physical abuse from any student.

Second skating exhibition set for benefit of hospital

ANALOMINK — A second ice skating exhibition benefiting the General Hospital of Monroe County will be held at 8 p.m. Friday, August 18, at the Pocono Ice-A-Rama, Analomink.

The skaters, all girls, range in age from 8 to 18. Most are from the Washington, D.C. area. Members of the Washington Skating Club, they are all accomplished skaters and present a highly professional program.

The skaters have come to the Pocono Ice-A-Rama for summer skating because there are no indoor rinks in the Washington, D.C. area.

Mrs. Ann Magana, director of the Pocono Summer Skating Camp, explained "since the make-up of the camp's student body changes from week to week, the August performance will be considerably different from the previous exhibition."

Sponsored by the Pocono Ice-A-Rama and the Pocono summer Ice Skating Camp, the first performance on July 28 was a success.

The one-hour performance netted almost $65 for the hospital, according to Charles Poalillo, owner of the indoor ice rink at Penn Hills Lodge.

"There was no actual admission charge," said Poalillo, "spectators were encouraged to make a donation to the hospital."

Stroudsburg State Police sponsor Explorer Scouts

STROUDSBURG — Young men and women interested in police work now have the opportunity to gain first hand experience from Police Explorer Post 170 sponsored by Stroudsburg State Police.

According to Trooper Michael J. Hartley, an advisor to the Explorers, the program is open to young people from ages 15 to 20.

"The program is designed to arouse interest in police work and give participants the chance to see the functions of a State Police sub-station from the inside out," he said.

Trooper Hartley said a total of 25 boys and one girl turned out for the Explorer's first meeting two months ago, but noted attendance has declined at recent meetings.

"We only had seven show up at our last meeting, but this is probably because of vacations and a schedule foul-up," he said.

He said the next meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 23 in the basement of St. Luke's Catholic Church on the corner of Ninth and Main Streets, Stroudsburg.

"The election of a president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer will be held at this meeting giving young people a chance to run their own business and learn the duties and functions of the police officer they meet everyday. People wishing to join should definitely attend," he said.

Hartley along with Troopers Robert G. Werts and Delvin Powell serve as advisors to the Explorers and expressed the hope more young people would develop an interest in the program.

"There has developed a communication gap of great magnitude in Monroe County between the young person and the police officer," Trooper Hartley said. "It's the ultimate goal of this program to bring together these two factions and for each to reach a mutual understanding of the other."

He noted State Police officers would just like to get down and "rap" with young people.

"We want questions at Explorer meetings, not just yes sir and no sir! Any questions concerning traffic enforcement, vehicle violations and criminal procedure will be answered. There are no dumb questions in the Police Explorer Post," he said.

Trooper Hartley stated activities at past Explorer meetings included tours of the Stroudsburg State Police Sub-station, firearm demonstrations with test firing by Explorers, instruction and discussion on fingerprinting techniques, a tour of the State Police helicopter and a chance to experience tear gas.

"In the future we plan a trip to the State Police Academy in Hershey, Pa. and a demonstration of scuba diving," he said.

He explained there are different types of Explorer Posts including those in police, medical, dental, and wilderness occupations.

Borough police probe accidents

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg Borough Police reported two multi-car accidents over the weekend which resulted in almost $4,000 worth of property damage and one minor injury. Both accidents occurred in the Main Street area near midnight Saturday.

The first mishap involved three cars when two vehicles collided at the intersection of Main and Ninth Streets. One of the cars involved in that smashup bounced into a stopped auto waiting to turn from Main Street onto North Ninth.

Police said one auto, operated by Sandra Achterman, East Stroudsburg R.D. 2, crossing Main Street from South Ninth was nearly through the intersection when a car driven by Lynne Dolan, of East Stroudsburg R.D. 3, turned left in front of her from North Ninth Street.

The two cars collided and Miss Dolan's vehicle bounced into a car stopped on Main Street operated by Melvin Fish, of Stroudsburg.

The second accident occurred at the intersection of Main and Sixth Streets shortly before 2 a.m. Sunday. A police spokesman said Foster Lee, of Fulmer Ave., Stroudsburg, was driving north on South Sixth Street and attempted to turn onto Main Street.

The other auto involved, operated by Stephanie Meixell, of Ridgewood, N.J., reportedly ran through a red light on Main Street and collided with the Lee car.

Police said one auto, operated by Sandra Achterman, East Stroudsburg R.D. 2, crossing Main Street from South Ninth was nearly through the intersection when a car driven by Lynne Dolan, of East Stroudsburg R.D. 3, turned left in front of her from North Ninth Street.

The two cars collided and Miss Dolan's vehicle bounced into a car stopped on Main Street operated by Melvin Fish, of Stroudsburg.

S-burg education officials break ground for school

By BRUCE POSTEN
Pocono Record Reporter
STROUDSBURG — Members of the Stroudsburg Area School Board and Stroudsburg School Authority participated in groundbreaking ceremonies Monday afternoon at the site of the new middle school on Chipperfield Drive.

Superintendent Samuel O. Wells III, Board President Donald Stone and Authority President William Wells dug the first shovel full of dirt officially marking the beginning of the new project.

The middle school will open with facilities for 1,785 students and will house grades five through eight. Approximately 1,200 students will be enrolled during the first year of the school's operation.

In place of classrooms, areas of 11,000 square feet will be utilized called "learning centers." In each of these learning centers teachers and students will have the ability to meet in groups of up to 300 or as small as one.

Fifth and sixth graders will have a home base similar to their elementary environment, but also will be exposed to team teaching for a limited amount of time.

Learning centers

Learning centers for grades seven and eight will be scheduled on a team teaching basis and will be subject oriented. Although a student will have a homeroom location, he will still move to various parts of the building to partake in specific subjects.

All learning centers will radiate from an "instructional materials center," an expanded library, which will obtain books, periodicals, tape recorders, film projectors and other media for either group discussion or quiet study.

The school structure will include complete facilities for music, art, home economics and industrial arts. All of these subjects will be taught in a group teaching media, termed "unified arts."

The core or central hub of the school building will contain administrative offices and a central area for teachers to gather and plan their activities for the school day.

Provisions will be made for a complete physical education program including remedial physical education as well as swimming. Special areas in the building also will be designated as foreign language areas, typing rooms and earth and space science centers.

Construction material

The construction material of the building is with standard steel framework on a reinforced concrete foundations. Several plateaus now existing on the site will be incorporated into terraced areas for exterior physical education program activities.

Protective canopy's are provided for bus unloading and parent-student drop off and pick-up.

The exterior design of the structure will have weathering steel panels which rust to a golden brown natural texture. The basic circular forms of the building are fluid in nature and will enclose the functional arrangements.

The new middle school can utilize 70 per cent of total space for educational purposes. The Pennsylvania state average for this figure is 54 per cent, but the administration anticipates over 80 per cent of total space to be used for education.

Complaint route angers park unit

STROUDSBURG — Members of the Monroe County Park Commission voiced discontent Monday over complaints from residents in the First Ward of Stroudsburg concerning unsanitary conditions in the First Ward Playground.

Several residents had called up the Monroe County Commissioners and other local officials to register complaints over cluttered toilet facilities and littered grounds.

Douglas Williams, park commission member, said, "Any more complaints should be registered to park commission members, and not to other officials. We should be the first to be notified."

Arthur Kitzman, chairman of the First Ward Playground, noted that the park had been cleaned in recent weeks, and that he had personally seen to restoring stolen and broken equipment.

Kitzman had told local residents that if there were any complaints a spokesman should attend the regular meetings of the park commission and air their grievances.

Members of the commission were expecting a small delegation of residents to attend Monday's meeting, but no one arrived.

On issues concerning the First Ward Playground, Doris Hilton, a board member, suggested that next year a counselor be appointed to work from 9:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. to instruct children in arts and crafts and supervise other activities.

"I believe if the park was open for more hours, it would cut down on the vandalism and some of the confusion," she said.

She noted the park was primarily designed for young children and "is nothing more than an extension of the bigger parks in Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg."

Sen. Scott continues to support Tocks dam

OTTAWA NEWS SERVICE
Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — With state and federal decisions coming to a head on the proposed Tocks Island Dam, Sen. Hugh Scott R-Pa. continues to be one of the strongest Congressional supporters of the project, while his junior colleague, Sen. Richard S. Schweiker R-Pa. still has "reservations."

In a recent speech on the Senate floor, Minority Leader Scott termed the Tocks project "an important multipurpose development" that is "urgently needed to meet the flood control, water supply, energy demands and water recreation needs of the steadily growing population" of the Delaware Basin.

He said he is "hopeful that any remaining environmental questions presented by this necessary project can be expeditiously resolved."

Schweiker, admitting to reservations about the project's environmental impact, notes that there are "differences of opinion among experts."

He said his reservations about the project would be allayed by a favorable report from the Council on Environmental Quality (CEQ).

Argument leads to shooting

BUSHKILL — An argument over repairs to an automobile ended in violence Sunday night when an East Stroudsburg man was shot in the legs with a shotgun blast by his uncle.

George Wall, 27, of Elizabeth St., East Stroudsburg, was treated and released at the General Hospital of Monroe County for pellet wounds in both legs below the knees after he was fired upon by his uncle at approximately 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

Wall's uncle by marriage, William VanBuskirk, of Bushkill, was identified by Pennsylvania State Police from the Stroudsburg barracks as being the man who fired the shot.

The mishap reportedly occurred after the two became involved in an argument and ensuing fight over repairs to VanBuskirk's auto.

VanBuskirk allegedly suffered several blows to the head from Wall before going to his house behind the M and S Flea Market and returning with the shotgun.

Wall attempted to flee the scene but VanBuskirk let loose a salvo that caught him below the knees as he was halfway across the parking lot.

A state police spokesman said action is pending Wall's choice to prefer charges against his uncle.

County officials attend flood protection meeting

Insurance 'strings' explained

By GARY GROSSMAN
Pocono Record Reporter
STROUDSBURG — The strings attached to qualifying for federal flood insurance were explained to officials from six of Monroe County's 20 municipalities Monday in the county courthouse.

Chris Carmichael, Housing and Urban Development Insurance Officer, from Philadelphia told the local officials any community capable of passing land use ordinances could qualify for the initially low cost flood insurance.

Only once the political subdivision has become eligible for the federal program, will its citizens be able to buy coverage under the plan, Carmichael said.

In Monroe County one township and the Borough of Stroudsburg have initiated procedures toward obtaining eligibility for the insurance.

In the entire Commonwealth, only 91 communities now are eligible for coverage.

Established under the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 and expanded in 1969 to cover mudslides, the program is available for communities expressing a written desire to qualify.

Prerequisites listed

Upon receipt of a resolution to be included in the program, federal agencies send the local community a list of prerequisites which include a map of flood plain areas, a history of flooding, a clean map of the community and a census of the flood prone area.

The next step in the process is for a notice of eligibility to be sent the municipality, opening the way for initial "subsidized" flood insurance while federal agencies map the local community and review local land use ordinances.

While the federal and local officials work together on land use ordinances and one of 11 possible federal agencies maps the local community, citizens may purchase insurance at subsidized rates, Carmichael said.

Maximum coverage

For a single family home the insurance can be obtained for 25 cents per hundred up to $17,500 or roughly $42 a year for the most coverage available. Contents can be covered under subsidized rates on a 35 cent per hundred basis.

"Once the mapping is done, we will ask the community to refine ordinances covering land use," Carmichael said.

He said later "refined" ordinance would have to meet federal standards or persons who purchased insurance in the community seeking qualification would be canceled.

Once the mapping is completed and the land use ordinances have been refined — a process of roughly 18 months — coverage will be based on "actuarial" premium rates.

What the actuarial premium rates will amount to in cash depends on the homeowners proximity to flood prone areas on the map drawn up by the federal agency.

In the meantime, ordinances governing land use will form guidelines for floodproofing structures in particularly flood prone areas, Carmichael said.

He conceded during the question period the standards would probably mean increased construction costs in the flood plain areas.

Again answering a question Carmichael said the low number of communities in the state subscribing to the federal program evidenced a reluctance by the communities to place the required land use ordinances on the books.

Once a community is determined eligible, the federal flood insurance can be bought from any licensed insurance agent, Carmichael said.

Migration of moth continues

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The gypsy moth, a costly forest pest, is continuing its slow migration from northeastern states into woodlands in other parts of the country.

Confirmation of the latest advance came as the Agriculture Department announced Monday the moth has now been found in Tennessee for the first time.

A department report added the moth also has been found this spring in three other states outside the generally infested northeast area.

In addition to the first-time finds in Cooke and Sevier counties in Tennessee, officials said moths were trapped in Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina.

Officials said six of the eight catches were at camping and recreation areas, "indicating that recreational vehicles are probably responsible for carrying the pest to new areas."

The moth defoliates trees. Officials said the entire states of Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and New Jersey are infested. The states of Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware are considered partly infested.

The catches announced Monday plus future findings will be used to plan further control programs for next spring.

Meanwhile, homeowners were urged to destroy any gypsy moth egg clusters found on tree limbs, rocks, outdoor furniture and vehicles.

Commissioners create job for eligible Vietnam vet

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Commissioners Monday created a new county job category to be salaried by funds from the Emergency Employment Act — County Archive Librarian.

The slot will pay $120 weekly and will involve placing the county's old records in order. For years the county has been storing past records in the attic of the courthouse. Recent inquiries about old records unturned the haphazard storing procedure.

Commission Chairman Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis said the person hired to be the archive librarian could work under the supervision of Mrs. Florence Ridgeway, a county employee who recently retired after 50 years of service.

Mrs. Shukaitis said Mrs. Ridgeway would be the "person most qualified" to supervise the job. The commissioners will look for a Vietnam War veteran to fill the post under the priority set by the federal government for EEA funds.

The commissioners also set terms for the newly named nine members of the county's Water, Sewer and Solid Waste Committee.

Only Donald Gage, East Stroudsburg Borough Manager, was asked to serve a five-year term. Placed on four-year terms were Delaware Water Gap Council President John Wilson, Jr., and resort businessman Herman Martens. On a three-year term are Charles Poalillo of the Vacation Bureau and builder Joseph Palchak.

On the authority for only one year will be Stroudsburg school teacher Mrs. J.J. Levergood and county commissioner Mrs. Shukaitis.

Attorney Charles Bensinger will serve as solicitor for the authority.

Reporting on a recent meeting of the Economic Development Council of Northeastern Pennsylvania, Commissioner Arlington Martin said the council discussed plans to rebuild areas of the region struck by flooding during Tropical Storm Agnes.

Martin said the concept discussed looked something like a "new city" for the Wilkes-Barre area, but involving building in the same area as the current city.

Announcement of the first seven persons to be moved from Pleasant Valley Manor to Stroud Manor, a private nursing home, was made by Mrs. Shukaitis who said the seven were the first to go under an agreement to move 25 persons into the private care facility.

A motion to have the county home apply for licensing as an "intermediate care" facility was approved by the board of commissioners.

Currently classified a "skilled nursing" care facility, Pleasant Valley Manor will be eligible for reimbursements to certain patients only when an intermediate care classification is obtained.

Mrs. Shukaitis said the difference between skilled nursing and intermediate care was typified by the difference between a bed-ridden patient and one who needed only partial supervision.

On the subject of the aged, the commissioners approved mileage allotment for a Bucks County spokesman to meet with the commissioners to discuss foster care for the elderly.

The commissioners moved to support state legislation increasing the state's share of child welfare funding from 50 to 60 per cent. The action was taken at the request of the state county commissioners' association.

From the state Department of Agriculture came notification of the establishment of consumer councils on the county level to inform consumers about protective and educational services of the department of Agriculture.

Contained in the notification was a request to locate active consumer advocates in the county for service on the council.

Mrs. Shukaitis expressed intentions to cooperate wherever possible to help the cause of consumer protection.

Bills paid

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg Borough Municipal Authority met Monday night at the Stroudsburg Water Company filtration plant. No new business was discussed and after a unanimous decision to pay the bills the meeting was adjourned.

Hamilton officials name planners

BARTONSVILLE — In a move to establish local planning in their township, the Hamilton Township Board of Supervisors Monday night created a five-man local planning commission; its first objective will be to draw up a local subdivision ordinance.

Robert Warden, Val Robbins, Elmer Kiefer, Ray Kress and William Weber were appointed as planning commission members, as nearly 30 interested residents looked on in approval.

The members drew straws to determine the length of their terms.

Warden will serve for one year, Robbins for two years, Kiefer for three years and Kress and Weber for four years each.

In another action, the supervisors considered an ordinance which would regulate the storage of junk in the township and would require all junk dealers to be licensed.

The board decided to table the motion after several residents became confused over the ordinance's definition of junk.

If a farmer uses parts from an old combine to repair his newer model, does he need a junkyard license for the old equipment? Does an antique car collector who keeps some old automobiles for parts have to pay $100 a year for a junkyard license and build an expensive fence around his property?

For almost a half an hour, residents exchanged views on the question; it seemed as if the citizens were divided evenly on the question.

While some residents wanted to protect the township from future eyesores, others protested that the new ruling would impose undue hardships on some citizens.

In an attempt to be fair to all residents, including farmers and hobby enthusiasts the supervisors agreed to consult with their solicitor to try to work up an amending clause.

Sewer law up-dating delayed

TANNERSVILLE — Acting on a suggestion from township supervisors, Pocono Township Planners Monday delayed action on the updating of the township sewerage ordinance. The planners had previously intended to up-date the ordinance to coincide with the updating of the township's zoning ordinances.

The supervisors had asked the planners to hold up action due to the possibilities of feasibility factors. The supervisors will make final determination as to whether the up-dating should be done at their regular meeting tonight.

In other action, the planners, accepted for consideration a plan from Robert Feinberg outlining the composition of a 50-unit condominium development adjacent to Pocono Haven Village.

Feinberg said building of the units will take place on five of the 50 acres in the development.

Pageant contestants

O'Conner wins

at Glen Brook

STROUDSBURG — Dave O'Conner continued his dominance of the Glen Brook Country Club course Sunday when he defended his club championship by beating Robert Robbins.

Charlie Potcher defeated Jim Williams in the first flight, Paul Shoemaker defeated Jim Tunney in the second flight, Leo Reimer beat Jules Rascona in the third flight.

Yankees drop to third place in East despite loss by first place Orioles

New York defeated by 3-0

KANSASCITY (UPI)—Cookie Rojas and Richie Scheinblum slapped third-inning, run-scoring singles, neither of which got out of the infield Monday night, leading the Kansas City Royals to a 3-0 victory over the New York Yankees for Bruce Dal Canton's sixth win of the year.

The loss was only New York's third in its last 11 games. Paul Schaal opened the third with a one-hop shot that shortstop Gene Michael booted for an error. Bobby Floyd followed with a single, sending Schaal to third. Floyd went to second when a play was made on Schaal.

With two out, Rojas bounced a ball up the middle. Second baseman Horace Clarke knocked it down, but had no play as Schaal scored and Floyd went to third. Then Scheinblum popped one halfway down the firstbase line, beating it out and allowing Floyd to score.

The Royals added another unearned run in the seventh when Dal Canton reached base on Clarke's error. He went to second on Steve Hovley's single, took third when Rojas bounced into a double play.

Royals pitcher Bruce Dal Canton shows his form early in ninth inning. Dal Canton was relieved by Norm Angelini after the first out in the ninth inning, but not before Dal Canton retired 23 straight batters, setting a Royals record. The Royals won the game 3-0. (UPI Wirephoto)

Backup quarterback for Dallas

Reeves brought out of retirement

DALLAS (UPI) — Dallas Coach Tom Landry said Monday former Cowboy running back Dan Reeves was being brought out of retirement as the club's backup quarterback and said he thought there was a good chance Roger Staubach might regain his 1971 form before the end of the 1972 season.

"The thing that made Roger try to run over that guy at the goal line Saturday night is going to make Roger get back in as soon as he can," said Landry.

The man Staubach tried to run over was Los Angeles Ram linebacker Marlin McKeever and Staubach wound up with a separated shoulder for his troubles.

Staubach underwent surgery on his right shoulder Sunday, and team physician Dr. Marvin Knight said last season's No. 1 quarterback in the National Football League would be lost for from eight to twelve weeks. "Bob Hayes (Cowboy wide receiver) was back in six weeks with that kind of injury," said Landry. "But a quarterback can't come back that quick. He will be up and around in two weeks and will probably be throwing in four weeks."

In the meantime the quarterback chore falls to Craig Morton, who led the Cowboys to Super Bowl V against Baltimore. Morton came off the bench in the second quarter Saturday night to throw three touchdown passes in Dallas' 27-13 win over Los Angeles—the Cowboys 13th straight win dating back to the middle of last season.

But if something happened to Morton the Cowboys would be in deep trouble. That's where Reeves comes in.

"We have decided to activate Reeves and he will start working at the position today," Landry said. "He's not in the greatest shape in the world, but he will come along."

Reeves, short on speed but long on balance and desire, was a mainstay at running back during the late 1960s with the Cowboys. Last season he became offensive backfield coach and acted as the club's No. 3 quarterback behind Staubach and Morton.

Reeves retired as a player at the end of last season. "Dan Reeves is an excellent thrower (he was probably better known for his ability to throw the halfback pass than his ability to run during his playing days), and he knows our system real well."

forced him to mis four games. Elsewhere in pro football:

NEW YORK JETS — Jerome Barkum, the Jets' top draft choice, ended a long holdout Monday and agreed to play. Yochum, an offensive tackle from Syracuse, agreed to a three-year contract. He was a second team All-East as a junior, but suffered a pinched nerve in the neck which play against the Giants Saturday.

PITTSBURGH — Tight end Bob Adams sprained his ankle against the Jets Saturday and will be replaced by Larry Brown against Atlanta. Center Bob Maples twisted an ankle, but is expected to be ready. Terry Hanratty will probably start at quarterback.

HOUSTON — Veteran lineman Gene Ferguson and Bob Young, who skipped a month of summer camp before reporting Sunday, face undetermined fines. General manager John Breen said both could be fined up to $200 per day. Both reported without signing pending settlement of their fines.

ATLANTA (UPI) — Johnny Bench knocked in five runs and Pete Rose drove in three as the Cincinnati Reds demolished Atlanta, 12-2, with a 16-hit attack Monday night.

Bench hit a two-run homer in the first inning, his 26th round-tripper of the season. He drove in another run with a single in the sixth and two more with a double in the seventh.

Bench, playing right field instead of catching, raised his RBI production for the season to 85.

Oakland explodes in victory

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Home runs by Mike Epstein and Joe Rudi led an 11-hit barrage off three Oriole pitchers as the Oakland Athletics supported reliever Roland Fingers' two-hit pitching for a 5-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Monday night.

Oakland built a 4-0 lead in tagging Jim Palmer with his sixth defeat against 15 wins, aided by the hitting and base running of shortstop Bert Campaneris. Rudi batted in two runs and Sal Bando added a run-scoring double in the eighth inning.

Epstein slammed his 19th homer leading off the fourth inning and Rudi belted his 16th in the fifth, both off Palmer.

Dave Johnson homered for Baltimore in the fifth inning as the Orioles chased starter Ken Holtzman after pinch-hitter Chico Salmon doubled.

STROUDSBURG — Keith Wilson is well out in front of John Ferrebee in the point standings on the Pocono 21 golf tour.

But the race for third place on the amateur tour is a five-man logjam with another two still in the running.

Wilson, the Pen Argyl golfer who has collected two firsts, tied for another, finished second, third and sixth this season, is well out in front with 118 points going into Wednesday's stop at Terra Greens Golf Course in East Stroudsburg.

Ferrebee, East Stroudsburg, has won one stop, tied for another tie, finished second and fourth twice to amass 98 points.

Wilson ended third and Ferrebee fourth last Friday behind Joe Viechnicki of East Stroudsburg at Delaware Water Gap Country Club.

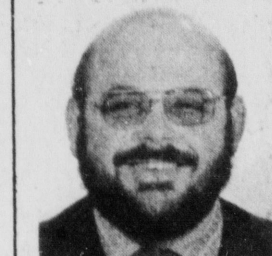

Scott Zukowski, East Stroudsburg, who ended two strokes behind Viechnicki, and Stroudsburg's Jim Kitchen are tied for third place with 85 points. Just one point back is Mike Soliday, who ended sixth Friday. Joe DeRoo, who ended behind Soliday, is a point back while Stroudsburg's John Kupice completes the logjam in seventh place with 71 points.

Joe McCluskey of Stroudsburg is in eighth place with 67 points and Jim Trinchiera has 63.

Here are the current Pocono 21 point standings after stops at Glen Brook, Pocono Manor, Buck Hill, Le Chateau, Shawnee and Delaware Water Gap:

Playoffs in the Pocono Tavern Softball League are to begin at 2 p.m. Sunday with the top four teams involved in a one-game elimination.

Two makeup games are scheduled tonight. Palace Bar is to face Chatterbox at 6 p.m. at Patterson-Kelley Field while Albino's is to meet Jakes Place at 6 p.m. at Klingel's Field. Stroud Manor won the regular season title with a 17-3 mark.

Officers in the Monroe County Women's Bowling Assn. are to receive supplies at a fall meeting and workshop at 8 p.m. Thursday at Colonial Lanes.

East Stroudsburg State College, which went 8-3-2 last season, has added powerhouse Hartwick College of Oneonta, N.Y. to its soccer schedule. The teams will meet at 10 a.m. Nov. 4 at the ESSC Stadium in the final regular season game.

Hartwick is coached by former ESSC All-America Al Miller, an ex-teammate of former Stroudsburg High School coach Karl Dickl. Hartwick has participated in four straight NCAA University Division tournaments and reached the final in 1970 and the quarter-finals last year.

ESSC has also added Temple University to its 15-game schedule. The game is scheduled for Sept. 22 in Philadelphia.

Cliff Carr, Arlington, Mass., and Dave Smith, Lakewood, Calif., have been added to the entry list for next weekend's American Motorcycle Assn. races at Pocono International Raceway.

Carr scored eight firsts in 17 starts in 1969 and 1970 and 16 firsts last year. Smith won the junior expert combine at Daytona and finished third in the 200-mile national at Daytona this year.

Muhlenberg has been added to the East Stroudsburg State College cross country schedule this season. The Warriors will face Muhlenberg at 4 p.m. Oct. 17 on the Terra Greens Country Club course in East Stroudsburg. It will be one of five home meets.

Schaefer 500 champ out to prove he's not just lucky

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—"If I'm successful in pulling off this championship," said Joe Leonard, "they're going to have to admit this guy can't be lucky two years in a row. There's too much competition for that."

With the U.S. Auto Club season now seven races old, the senior member of Parnelli Jones' so-called super team is way out in front in a bid for his second straight national title.

Leonard, 37, won his first USAC crown last year with 3,015 points. Just halfway through the championship car schedule this year, he had 2,640 points, exactly 1,000 more than teammate Al Unser.

Winner of the Michigan 200 and the Schaefer 500 in July, the veteran driver from San Jose, Calif., has been the epitome of consistency in 1972. In his six starts this year, he has been in the top five six times.

He was third at Indianapolis behind Mark Donohue, now sidelined with injuries as a result of a Can-Am practice crash, and Al Unser.

"I'm particularly happy with the way things are going because of the slow start our team got," Leonard said. "Take Indianapolis for example. There were only two or three cars I could actually pass in that race."

A three-time American Motorcycle Assn. national champion before turning to cars in 1958, Leonard drove his Parnelli-Offy Samsonite Special to victory Sunday in a 200 Miler at Milwaukee. Then he defends his California 500 championship — the final jewel of auto racing's Triple Crown — at Ontario Sept. 3.

Leonard didn't take the lead in the 1971 USAC points race until he won at Ontario last year.

"I dropped a valve at Milwaukee so I didn't finish there," he recalled. "I finally caught Al (Unser) at Ontario. So I guess I'm having a little more competitive year than last year."

At Ontario to do tire testing for Firestone last week, Leonard said the Parnelli Jones team deserved much of the credit for his success.

"A good man never quits," he remarked. "It's the same with a good team. This team didn't quit when things weren't going too good. We certainly don't have our cars perfected yet but we're gaining."

Leonard helped Andy Granatelli pioneer the turbine car. In fact, he was leading the 1968 Indianapolis 500 comfortably on the 191st lap in a Granatelli turbine when his machine suddenly stopped.

He talked about his image five years later.

"When I drove the turbine," he said, "people accused me of being too hard on equipment. Now they're accusing me of being a CC (coast and collect) driver."

In addition to Donohue, A. J. Foyt is out of competition with a broken ankle.

"It's a shame about A.J. and Mark," said Leonard. "But there are still a lot of drivers who are capable of winning. My teammates (Mario Andretti and Al Unser) for two. Then there's Gary Bettenhausen, Roger McCluskey, Bill Vukovich, Bobby Unser, etc."

The veteran they call "Ol' Pelican" won in 95-degree heat at Ontario last September.

"If the temperature is in the 95-100 range again this year, I'd say it will take 196 to 198 (miles per hour) to win the pole at Ontario next month," Leonard declared. "If the temperature is around 100, I'd say it will take something around 200."

To lead Australian swimmers

Shane Gould: 'Girl in a million'

MUNICH, Germany (UPI)—It's rare for a female to steal the limelight on a great sporting occasion, so when it happens the lady has to be something special.

Shane Gould is something special.

At 15, one could hardly call the Australian swimmer a lady, but her physical attributes are such that it is hard to believe she is so young.

Although the Olympic Games are Shane's first major competition, she already walks and talks with the style of a winner.

"A girl in a million," is how her coach, Forbes Carlisle, describes her. Fair comment when you consider she held, until recently, every freestyle record from 100 to 1,500 meters.

Why she became a super star when so young was apparent for all to see on her first day in Munich.

Minutes after checking into her quarters following the 30-hour flight from Australia she was "unwinding" in the Olympic pool. "Nothing serious, you understand," she said. "I just wanted to get the feel of the water."

Other lesser mortals pulled over so they could stand and watch the Australian's stroke action. Maybe they could find the secret which would make them great champions.

Her workout complete, Shane strolled over to talk to newsmen.

"You recently lost two of your world records to Americans, Shane. How do you feel about that?" was the first question fired at her.

Quick as a flash, she came back: "Oh, yeah, that. Well, to tell you the truth, I'm surprised they did not go faster. I set my times six months ago. I've been out of competition since but, believe me, I'm faster now than

I was in January.

"Because the Americans broke several records during their trials in Chicago does not mean they've suddenly come on. We've worked hard back home, but as we've not done any competitive swimming, we have not made the headlines."

"None of us lost any sleep at what took place in Chicago. It's what happens here that matters."

A moment's pause to catch her breath and reflect and she added: "Come to think of it, I'd rather beat those Americans at the Games rather than have it the other way around. They can have my records for the moment."

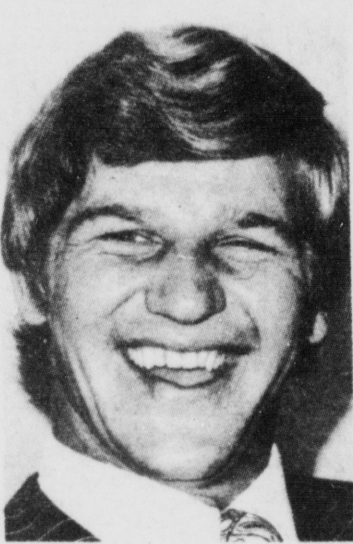

Orr among three missing

Team Canada begins training camp

TORONTO (UPI)—The most extraordinary training camp in National Hockey League history began Monday as 32 of the 35 players selected for Team Canada's eight-game series with Russia arrived in Maple Leaf Gardens.

Coach Harry Sinden and assistant John Ferguson scheduled a light skating practice for the afternoon before beginning twice daily sessions today, including full squad workouts in the morning and then dividing the teams into two squads for afternoon drills.

Bobby Orr and Ed Johnston of the Boston Bruins, and Montreal Canadiens' Jacques Laperriere were the only players who missed Sunday's medical examination. Orr is recuperating from major knee surgery and will miss at least the Canadian half of the series starting Sept. 2 with games in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Bobby Orr

Laperriere's replacement, teammate Guy Lapointe, may also miss next month's Russia-Canada series because his wife is pregnant.

As players arrived from their summer hockey schools, off-season jobs, and university courses, much of the conversation centered on their mental conditioning, as well as the curved goal creases which will be used in Russia.

Harold Ballard, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, said he was worried Canadians could not get fired up about winning for their country.

"I just hope our guys have the enthusiasm and the patriotism of the Russians," he said.

"If the Russian does not get fired up, he's fired...you know damn well they will be in shape."

Most of the Team players dismissed Ballard's concern. Stan Mikita, named yesterday by Sinden as co-captain along with Jean Ratelle, Phil Esposito, and Frank Mahovlich, called the game self-satisfying and said he expected to work "harder at this than I have ever worked at any training camp."

Dale Tallon, Vancouver Canuck forward, called the exhibition series the chance of a lifetime. "Money talked before patriotism before, so we turned pro and couldn't play for our country. Now we can," he said.

Rod Gilbert, who along with New York Ranger teammates Vic Hadfield and Ratelle, form the only one team line on Team Canada, pointed to the individual pride at stake for NHL players.

"We don't want to lose a single game," Gilbert said. "The fact that there are so many guys in our league who could have been chosen means that we are not going to fool around."

Shirley Babashoff swam the 200 meters freestyle in 2:05.02 during the U.S. Olympic trials to break Shane's existing record of 2:05.08, while Jo Ann Harshbarger got the 800 meters time down to 8:53.08 against Shane's 8:58.01.

Her times for 100 meters (58.05), 400 meters (4:21.01) and 1,500 meters (17:00.06) still stand.

In addition to the four freestyle events, Shane will also start in the 200 meter individual medley, while she'll anchor the relay teams.

"It's good to be the underdog in a couple of events. It helps take the pressure off."

She was ready to go on talking but swimming Manager Fred Pegram intervened. "Okay, fella, let's call it a day. We've come a long way and are tired. We also have to eat."

As Pegram walked from the pool, he said: "What makes her a super star?"

"Natural ability, high intelligence and extraordinary self discipline."

"Some athletes have two of these qualities, but few have all three. Mark Spitz has it. Kip Keino has it. Shane has got it."

Australian Shane Gould listens to advice from chief coach, Donald Talbot, during practice Monday in the Olympic swim stadium. Until recently, Shane held every freestyle record from 100 to 1,500 meters.

GARY PLAYER'S GOLF CLASS:

What started as showdown turned into major squabble

By PATRICK WALLACE
Dow Jones-Ottawa News

MONTREAL — It had all the makings of a cosmic struggle. The ultimate showdown. The Russians, perennial world amateur ice hockey champ, had agreed to skate against the best in Canada, long considered home of the sharpest puck shooters, to decide the true world champion.

That sounds pretty exciting. But the whole thing had degenerated into a host of office squabbles and gripes since the agreement was reached last spring. The competition is still on, but all the bickering seems to have soured all but the hardest of hard-core hockey nuts. "Enough of this hockey nonsense," one exasperated reader wrote recently to the Toronto Globe and Mail.

The pact calls for an all-star team of Canadian-born professionals (some of whom play for U.S. teams) to face off against the Russian National team in eight games, four in Canada, four in Russia.

Canadian professionals vs. Russian amateurs may sound like a mismatch, but the Russian players are classified as amateurs only because they aren't specifically paid for playing hockey. Most of them are in the army and apparently do little more than play hockey all the time.

Each team will be able to draw on a roster of 35 players for home games, 30 for away games. The Canadian games will be played Sept. 2 in Montreal, Sept. 4 in Toronto, Sept. 6 in Winnipeg and Sept. 8 in Vancouver. The four Russian games, all in Moscow, begin Sept. 22.

The ink was barely dry before the Canadians started to have second thoughts about scheduling. Canadian hockey pros usually begin training in September.

But to play in September, they'd have to start training in August. An appeal to postpone the series until October received a curt "nyet". An some players began grumbling about the remuneration (zero) plus the risk of possible injury.

Then the Canadians began musing about officiating. Alan Eagleston, executive director of the National Hockey League Players Assn. and a director of Hockey Canada, the federal agency in charge of the team, says, "We were concerned about quality. We wanted NHL referees."

Another "nyet" from Ivan. The referees will be from the ranks of international athletic officials who handle such events as the Olympics and other world championships.

The officiating discord was nothing compared to what happened when Harry Sinden, former coach of the NHL Boston Bruins and Newly appointed General Manager and coach of the Canadian team, announced his player selections.

An agreement soon came to light that infuriated thousands of Canadians and brought an objection from none other than Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau: Hockey Canada had agreed with the NHL in 1970 that if the games were arranged, only players who signed NHL contracts could participate.

Which meant that Bobby Hull, former Chicago Black Hawk superstar who recently jumped to the Winnipeg Jets of the fledgling World Hockey Assn. for a reported $2.8 million, couldn't play for Canada.

It also ruled out participation by three other stars — Derek Sanderson, Gerry Cheevers and J.C. Tremblay — who were chosen by Sinden but later signed with the WHA.

A distressed Trudeau wrote Hockey Canada expressing his "concern" over Hull's being eliminated from the team. Thousands of Canadians deluged newspaper editors and members of parliament with letters accusing Hockey Canada of "pandering" to the NHL.

But the rule stood.

"There is a big difference for me because I use the edges of the crease to judge angles in cutting down the target the guy has to aim at. I found I was never really certain of my position with the curved lines."

Meanwhile, as camp opened, players learned that a $200,000 death and disability insurance policy will cover them from Sunday through to October 4. According to Allan Eagleston, NHL Players Association representative, this would guarantee players $18,000 to $20,000 a year for life should their career be ended through an injury with Team Canada.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Dow Jones industrial average Monday rose to its highest level in nearly four years as the stock market pushed sharply higher in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The closely watched index of 30 selected industrial blue chips gained 9.33 to 973.51, its best closing since it reached 975.14 on Dec. 19, 1968. The highest the Dow ever closed was at 995.15 on Feb. 9, 1966. Its previous high this year was 971.25 on May 26.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock index, a broader barometer, gained 0.60 to 112.55, establishing a new record. The average price of a NYSE common share increased by 18 cents a share, with the all stock index also setting a record.

Advances topped declines, 891 to 585, among the 1,769 issues crossing the tape. Turnover climbed to 18,870,000 shares from the 16,570,000 traded Friday.

The gain, according to Harry Laubscher, analyst for Walston & Laubscher, was a continuation of a rally begun late Friday. "Things look good right now and I think the Dow will make a strong test of the 980 level," Newton Zinder, analyst for E. F. Hutton & Co., agreed. He added the news presidential adviser Henry Kissinger was in Paris for another round of secret Vietnam War peace talks helped spur the advance. "What we are seeing is a breakout on the upside," Zinder said. Many analysts said the market may have trouble going above the 980 level of the Dow because many traders will be willing to sell stocks which are at a high price right now. Talk, however, has revived about the average breaking the "magic" 1,000 level, something it never has achieved.

Continental Corp. (ex-dividend) was the most active issue, off 3/4 at 40 on 402,000 shares, including a block of 383,600 shares at 40. Gulf Oil was second, up 1/2 at 24 on 334,000 shares, including a block of 100,000 shares at 23 3/4, up 1/4.

Phillips Petroleum, another of the strong oil group, was third, up 1 3/4 at 34 3/4 on 196,700 shares. The biggest gainer in the oils was Superior, up 7 at 302. Barber gained 3, Natamex and Atlantic Richfield, California Standard, Pennzoil and Mobil around a point. Some analysts noted many oil stocks are oversold.

Chemicals also were pace-setters.

Everybody's business

Rite Aid opens store

EAST STROUDSBURG — Following a ribbon-cutting ceremony officially opening the new East Stroudsburg Rite Aid Store, scores of shoppers edged their way into the new discount center in the Pocono Plaza, Lincoln Avenue, East Stroudsburg.

Taking part in the ribbon cutting were council president Pearly D. Hunt; councilman W. Jack Wallie; borough manager Donald C. Gage; Nancy Shukaitis, chairman of the Monroe County Commissioners; Jesse R. Flory, president of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce; Ralph E. Reppert, executive director of the chamber; George Lazar, manager of Victory Market; Max M. Fleischmann, owner of Cards N Things, Inc.; Arthur I. Andrews, store manager; Ron Williams, assistant manager; Rolf Schwarz, store supervisor Brenda Slutter as "Miss Rite Aid"; and Paul F. Chandler, Rite Aid Director of public relations.

All of the participants were taken on a tour of the store.

He said, "the company has spared no expense to make this store one of the finest of its kind in this part of the country. We have a lot of faith in the future of East Stroudsburg and we are going to do everything we can to merit the support of all of the people of this fine community."

Store Manager Andrews, his wife Linda and daughter Tara-Leigh reside in Stroudsburg. Store hours are Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Rite Aid Corporation is an international retail drug store chain with 325 stores in 11 eastern states, including Pennsylvania, and 24 stores in England. Rite Aid Corporation is a publicly owned company and is listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

AAA sets campaign for holiday

HARRISBURG — AAA motor clubs across the state of Pennsylvania will carry out an extensive "stay alive" highway safety awareness campaign during the Labor Day holiday.

The campaign will stress the theme "Bring 'em Back Alive."

Allan C. Hunsinger, manager of the AAA Motor Club of Northeastern Pennsylvania, said his organization is joining with the 39 other clubs in the state to spread the campaign through the news media during the long weekend.

Hunsinger said the AAA feels a well-informed driver, who has been thoroughly alerted to safe driving techniques and potential hazards, has a better chance of enjoying a safe holiday on the roads.

With the cooperation of the various news media, stated Hunsinger, the long distance and short range traveler will be bombarded with safe driving tips.

"FORGET it, Donald. Two's company, three's a crowd and four is RIDICULOUS!"

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)

— Give special attention to statements which seem to sway you considerably. Look deep for real meanings; do not settle for anything which even hints at the dubious.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)

— Careful exploration of offerings and soundly directed imagination needed now. Don't mix business and personal affairs.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)

— Good planetary influences. Careful planning and moves at the right times and places will keep you in the lead for gains, with ease of effort.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)

— Look for trends early; things may not be as you expected last week. Some situations are changing obviously, others subtly. Be careful to avoid errors.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)

— Conduct your affairs with dignity, controlled force and consideration of others involved. Make sure you project the fine assets with which you have been endowed.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)

— Lateness and indisposition could cause losses now. Avoid distractions and concentrate on getting matters done on time and properly.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)

— Keep personal affairs separate from business activities and you will be less bothered by dispute, turmoil. Find an improved way to present your wares.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)

— Maintain a steady pace if you would accumulate the substantial reserves and resources you admire. Steer clear of time-wasters and nonessentials.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius)

— Temperament and desires will determine whether you gain or lose ground now. Release pent-up feelings in ways worthy of your better self, else havoc! Try to understand others.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn)

— You may not gain everything you hope for but, on the whole, this could be a profitable day. You should make a notable impact in job matters, especially.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius)

— A different approach rather than a complete change of objective may be the keynote to your success now. Take time to think things out, to absorb details.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces)

— Take any steps needed to stabilize your budget and long-range security projects. Some adverse influences govern financial matters generally.

YOU BORN TODAY have a vibrant, outgoing attitude toward life. You are extremely energetic and would make an excellent executive or business manager once you learn to control a tendency toward arrogance with those under your supervision. You have a great love of the arts and could excel in almost any one of them if properly trained — but, perhaps, more spectacularly in music, writing or the theater. A born leader, you could also succeed in statesmanship or in the military. Birthdate of: Napoleon Bonaparte, Emperor of France; Sir Walter Scott, novelist.

THE ABC'S OF DIAMONDS BEGINS WITH THE LETTER

NOCTURNE SET

Before you select your diamond ring, know the "4C's" of diamond quality and value:

Color. From shades of yellow to finest white.

Clarity. The measurement of imperfections.

Cut. Determines the degree of brilliance.

Carat Weight. The measure of a diamond's size.

Every ArtCarved diamond is carefully selected and graded for superior color, clarity and cut. The carat weight of the diamond is permanently engraved on the inside of each ArtCarved ring, providing lasting value for your lasting love.
